UNIVERSAL PRAYER FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS.
SUNDAY, OCTOBER 20th, and MONDAY, OCTOBER 21st, 1878.
"Let us draw near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith."—Hebrews x., 22.
The Committee of the Sunday School Union, in renewing their call for Universal Prayer on behalf of Sunday Schools, gratefully recognize the fact that, since their first invitation in 1872, the Christian Church has, by almost universal assent, agreed to set apart this season at which the Teachers in every part of the world may blend their supplications together for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the children and young persons of all countries.
The Committee have conferred with their brethren of kindred institutions, and it has been thought desirable that the Third Sunday in the month of October of each year, together with the following day, should be the days thus set apart to this sacred purpose.
The necessity for increased consecration on the part of all Teachers is admitted; and having regard to the strenuous efforts made by many to depreciate the observance of the Christian Sabbath, and by others to spread rationalistic views amongst our rising youth, there is the greatest need for a deeper and more earnest spiritual teaching. This can only be done by the rich bestowment of the Holy Spirit upon those who teach, and hence the necessity for renewed devotion and earnest pleading for power from on high.
It is suggested that the following arrangements should, as far as practicable, be observed:—
That on LORD'S-DAY Morning, October 20th, from 7 to 8 o'clock, all Christians, in private, offer prayer on behalf of Sunday Schools.
That the opening engagements of the Morning School be preceded by a meeting of the Teachers for Prayer.
That Ministers be asked to preach Special Sermons upon the claims of the Sunday School upon the Teachers and the Church.
That in the Afternoon the ordinary engagements of each School be shortened, and that the Scholars be gathered for a devotional service, interspersed with singing and appropriate addresses. To this service the Parents of the Scholars might be invited.
That at some time during the Evening the Teachers, in union with other Christians, meet for Thanksgiving and Prayer.
That on MONDAY Morning, October 21, between the hours of 7 and 8, Teachers should bring their Scholars in private prayer before God.
That in the course of the day the Female Teachers of each School hold a meeting for united Prayer and Thanksgiving.
That in the Evening each Church or Congregation be invited to hold a meeting, at which the interests of the Sunday School should form the theme of the prayers and addresses.
Many have been the mercies bestowed, and great have been the benefits realized, in answer to former supplications, and thus the Ebenezers of the past should lead us to expect the fulfilment of the promises which are "Yea and Amen in Christ Jesus."
WILLIAM GROSER, FOUNTAIN J. HARTLEY, AUGUSTUS BENHAM, JOHN E. TRESIDDER, } Honorary Secretaries.
Teachers are requested to preserve the above programme.

BOTANY.

The committee, in announcing their Grand Annual Picnic, beg to inform the public that they have made arrangements to make this picnic the grandest picnic that has ever taken place in Sydney. Having gone to an enormous expense in preparing the grounds, which are of the extensive nature that the visitors may have every opportunity in indulging in the large and varied programme that, after the most careful consideration, has been prepared for their enjoyment and comfort, and hope to receive the same kind patronage that has at all times been awarded their appeal to the public.

The following old English games form a part of the programme:

MR. JESSE SHEPARD is prepared to give a few more SEANCES, prior to his early departure from Sydney. Mr. Shepard will give appointments and any further information desired between the hours of 2 and 4 daily, at his apartments, Mona House, Wynyard-square.
Fee for admission to Seances, 10s 6d.

MR. JESSE SHEPARD has consented, at the solicitation of friends but contrary to his inclination, to publish a few notices, from hundreds in his possession, which have been accorded to him by some of the ablest critics in all parts of Europe and America.

The following is from the pen of JACOB F. KRAUSS, the great linguist and musician, professor of Greek and Hebrew in the Boston University, embodying his criticism after three weeks analysis of Mr. Shepard's performances:—

"12, Bond-street, Boston,
"April 1, 1875.

"Dear Sir,—In answer to your letter I would say that Mr. Jesse Shepard has lived with me this severe winter more than three weeks, during which time I have had sufficient opportunities of forming an idea of his peculiar musical talent. Not only his 'Egyptian March' is grand beyond description, as you say, but so many others, such as 'Assyrian,' 'Babylonian,' 'Ancient Israelite,' 'Indian,' 'Persian,' &c., &c., are equally wonderful in the highest degree. He is the greatest living musician of his kind, and is called by some the musical wonder. His musical talent is a fact, just like other facts; for example, like Shakespeare, Schiller, Homer, &c., so that we can say the 19th century has produced this peculiar musical wonder. It is the same law which has produced in Germany a Schiller and a Goethe, and in England a Shakespeare and Milton. How this law works, to effect such phenomena may be difficult to explain, and these phenomena themselves may not always be conscious of it, or even not always know of it themselves. The 'Philosophus Teutonicus,' in his several works, explains very many things, if not all things, and reading his books may afford similar food as music affords, and may enlighten you in regard to your other questions, therefore enjoy true philosophy and enjoy sublime music. I remain, yours truly,—Professor F. KRAUSS."

The following is from the pen of Dr. DAVIES, the able critic of the DAILY TELEGRAPH:—London, June 7, 1870.

"Mr. Shepard played first of all a piece by way of introduction, of a weird and nondescript character, displaying as he did so great power of manipulation, of which the instrumentation and execution were certainly very complicated, and would I am free to confess have created a sensation in any concert room. Then the lights were put down to a mere point, and the vocal performance commenced. This was more remarkable than the instrumental, in so far as it involved the physical difficulty of a man singing in a clear ringing soprano voice up to higher C in alt, keeping it up, and then leaving it, but sustaining it and shaking upon it."

The following is from Le Nord, Paris, August 12, 1873:—

"M. Shepard, lui, a trouvé le succès dès son arrivée, san sortir de chez lui; il a conquis le public parisien, une soirée qui a été vraiment des plus intéressantes et dont Henri Delsage, lui est sorti enthousiasme."

The following is from the NATIONALE REPUBLICAN Washington March 17, 1873:—

NEW SOUTH WALES PARLIAMENT.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4.

The SPEAKER took the chair at twenty-nine minutes past 4 o'clock.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

Mr. BURNS, for Mr. Sutherland, said, in answer to Mr. Dangar, that no trial survey had yet been made for a railway line from Narrabri to Walgett.

Mr. LEARY said, in answer to Mr. Beyers, that the Government had purchased the Protestant Hall at Hill End, for a Court-house, at the price of £400, and that the cost of completing and fitting up the building was estimated at £1400. A petition protesting against the purchase was presented.

Mr. LEARY said, in answer to Mr. Dangar, that it was intended to extend the Jury Laws Amendment Act of 1876 within the police district of Walgett to a circuit of fifty miles, in terms of section 1, of 40 Vic., No. 6.

Mr. BURNS said, in answer to Mr. Lynch, for Mr. Coonan, that no tender had been accepted for erection of the post and telegraph office at Bourke. Tenders had been invited again, and were to be sent in on or before the 22nd instant.

Mr. FARNELL, in answer to Mr. Day, gave information respecting the disputed Welaregang reserve, the delay in the issue of the deeds of a piece of land purchased at Tumberumba on the 29th October, 1873, the conditional purchase of Patrick Nugent, and the settlement of Beazley's conditional purchase case.

Mr. FARNELL said, in answer to Mr. Dangar, that the newly-revised lithographs of the county of Baradine were printed and ready for sale, but those of the counties of White, Jamison, Gower, and Denman were not yet ready.

PAPERS.

Mr. BURNS laid on the table further papers respecting the land adjoining the General Post Office.

It was ordered that the document be printed.

PETITION PRINTED.

Mr. F. B. SUTTOR moved,—"That the twelve petitions presented by him on 3rd instant from the various districts around Bathurst, against the Birds and Animals Protection Bill, be printed."

The motion was agreed to.

SYDNEY INFIRMARY AND DISPENSARY.

On the motion of Mr. DRIVER, leave was given to bring in a Bill to Incorporate the Sydney Infirmary and Dispensary, and the bill was brought up and read the first time.

PUBLIC AND PRIVATE SUFFERANCE WHARFS.

Mr. COHEN moved,—"That this House will, on Wednesday next, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the expediency of bringing in a bill to further amend the law relating to Public and Private Sufferance Wharfs."

The motion was agreed to.

DRUNKARDS PUNISHMENT ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

Mr. JACOB moved the second reading of the Drunkards Punishment Act Amendment Bill. His primary object in bringing this bill forward was to meet a very serious defect in the present Drunkards Punishment Act, 30 Vic., No. 5, by the peculiar wording of which there was no power to charge a person with being drunk and disorderly in a public thoroughfare or place. There might be a drunkard in a church or a theatre, and, if a constable were not present, there was no power to bring the offender before a Court. There was a difference of opinion in regard to this. Some magistrates thought there was power to summon, and persons occasionally were summoned, but, as magistrates were not agreed upon the point, the cases fell to the ground. The first clause of the bill would give power to summon a person charged with the offence named in the bill; and, if he did not appear in answer to the summons, a warrant might be issued. The second clause provided that imprisonment might be adjudged instead of a fine for a fourth conviction during twelve months, the imprisonment not to exceed fourteen days. The Attorney-General concurred in the necessity for a bill of this nature. If the House went into committee on the measure, he (Mr. Jacob) would move that a third clause be added to the bill, the object of the clause being to remedy a defect which came into existence with the old Drunkards' Act. Under that Act, 19 Victoria, No. 29, drunkards were liable to punishment, and to simplify the labours of officials it was allowable to include a number of persons in one warrant of commitment. The Act referred to having expired, he had substantially re-enacted the clause which gave that power. The object was that, in such places as the city police courts, for example, where a large number of drunkards were frequently committed, one warrant of commitment might suffice for the whole, instead of separate warrants having to be made out in each case.

Mr. GREENWOOD took exception to the measure as another instance of piecemeal legislation. The object of the bill might be a very good one, but in legislating we ought to have regard to the convenience of the public in the use of the public statutes, and we should not make them either too complicated or too multifarious. If the Government did not see fit to challenge this measure, he would have nothing further to say about it. If he were a responsible Minister, he should feel it his duty to object to legislation being carried on in this fashion.

Mr. LEARY said that it would no doubt be a desirable thing to have a codification of the laws, but there was no immediate prospect of seeing that carried out, judging from the experience of an attempt made in the other branch of the Legislature to consolidate the criminal law. There seemed to be a doubt, which the hon. member for the Lower Hunter had discovered, as to whether persons could be summoned for being drunk, and it was very desirable that the power should be given. Though a codification of the laws was a very desirable thing, it would not be wise to stop useful legislation until that codification could be carried out.

Mr. WINDEYER said the subject of this bill would not form part of a criminal code. It had not been thought desirable to include it and many other minor offences, in the bill to consolidate the criminal law. He thought it was desirable to pass this bill in order to remedy the defect which had been pointed out, even though it did seem piecemeal legislation. It was his intention, when the bill got into committee, to propose an amendment limiting the time within which an information for drunkenness could be laid.

Mr. CAMERON thought the power which this bill would give to police constables was open to very great abuse. A man going home late, say on a Saturday night, and being perfectly sober, might find himself summoned on the following Tuesday for drunkenness and be unable to prove his innocence. He was himself witness to a case where a man was apprehended and fined for making use of bad language when he was entirely innocent.

Mr. F. SUTTOR could not see that any abuse was likely to arise under this bill. Instead of its being a hardship to a drunken person to be summoned, it would be an advantage, because he would escape a night in the lock-up, and would be able to prepare for his defence. He thought the hon. member for the Lower Hunter deserved credit for the courage he had shown on several occasions in proposing useful amendments of this sort.

Mr. BEYERS mentioned an instance in which he was insulted by a policeman when going home about one or two o'clock one morning from a farewell party, at which there had been only tea, and no liquors, and when he was perfectly sober. The constable remarked, "Beyers is very proud since he was elected an alderman," and he turned round and said, "Who are you?" whereupon the constable threatened to take him in charge. He was asked the next day to bring the matter before the Police Magistrate, but he would not do it because the police had too much power. (Hear, hear.)

The motion for the second reading was put and agreed to, and the House went into committee to consider the bill in detail.

The preamble was postponed.

Clause 1 was proposed as follows:—"1. It shall be lawful for any Justice of the Peace before whom any person shall be charged on information with being drunk or drunk and disorderly in any highway, street, road, or public place, to issue his summons directed to such person stating shortly the matter of such information, and requiring him to appear at a certain time and place before the same or such other justice or justices as shall then be there, to answer to the said charge, and such person may thereafter be dealt with under the Act aforesaid, as if he had been apprehended and taken before a justice in terms thereof, and in default of his appearing in answer to the said summons, a warrant may be issued for his apprehension, or the case may be heard ex parte under the provision of any Act or Acts in force for the time being, regulating proceedings on summary convictions."

Mr. FITZPATRICK moved the omission of the words "drunk or" in the second line. He agreed with the argument of a previous speaker that drunkenness was not an offence against society, except when it was associated with disorder, and then it ought to be punished. This Act would deal with cases where there was no constable at hand and some citizen would be called upon to give evidence. Let them suppose a man lying helplessly drunk on the racecourse. He might be allowed to lie there until a constable came up. It hardly become any one else to take him up.

Mr. WINDEYER admitted that if a man became drunk entirely in private it might be looked upon as only a self-regarding offence. But if the man lay a disgusting object in the public highway, then he thought the man committed an offence against public decency. There were many natural acts which if committed in public would be outrages against decency. The effect of allowing drunken persons to remain about the streets would be detrimental to the habits and morals of the young. He should vote against the amendment of the Colonial Secretary.

Mr LEARY did not think what was proposed was such a terrible matter as stated by the last speaker. He never yet saw a private individual summoning a person for being drunk. No doubt it was unseemly for a man to lie about the streets drunk, but then persons who were offended at the sight could call a policeman and have the man taken up. At present there was this danger that if the person were not disorderly a policeman, without the least grounds for it, might take a man to the watchhouse and have him locked up. While the police force as a body were very respectable men, there were many he would not like to trust. If there were not policemen enough let them increase them. Many humane men would take a drunken man home if he saw that he could walk at all, and he thought it would be well if a policeman helped a drunken man home sometimes instead of taking him to the lock-up.

Mr. JACOB said if police officers were of the character represented by the Minister for Justice and Instruction, we ought to get rid of them altogether. He thought if the Colonial Secretary would consider this matter in all its bearings, he would withdraw his amendment. The Colonial Secretary should bear in mind that we had already a law by which a person could be punished for being drunk as well as for being drunk and disorderly, and the power was given to apprehend in any case. Why should the hon. gentleman wish to have a modification in this particular matter. By a bill passed at the instance of Mr. Terry certain places, such as a public meeting, were declared to be public places, and he pointed out how advantageous it would be to give the power to summon a drunken person who might be present to disturb the proceedings.

Mr. TERRY said they very seldom saw a constable take a person up for drunkenness unless he were dead drunk. But a person might be reeling in the street from indisposition, and a policeman could summons him, and how was he to prove that he was not drunk. In his opinion all the laws in the world would not prevent drunkenness; that could only be done by moral suasion, and by the way they brought up their children. He did not think it right to summon a person for being drunk; a policeman might summon a Minister of the Crown for being drunk, and how was he to disprove it? He should vote for the Colonial Secretary's amendment.

Mr. LYNCH thought the hon. member would do well to consider what the effect of this provision would be upon society. He did not see that it was required at all, for we were sufficiently protected by the present law. He should support the amendment.

Mr. BEYERS considered that the police had already more power than they were entitled to. He was told that a policeman was liable to be dismissed unless he brought in a certain number of charges. Was that right? Was that English law?

Mr. WINDEYER said the Minister for Justice and several hon. members seemed to think that this bill gave the police greater powers than they had at the present time. [Mr. DRIVER: So it does.] It was not now for the first time that the police had power to arrest for drunkenness. They had had that power ever since 1866. [Mr. LEARY: I did not object to that.] Then, if the hon. member did not object to the police having power to arrest, how could he object to their having power to summon? He could not imagine how it could be supposed that the police would abuse this power. In many cases it would be far kinder to deal with a man in this way than to drag him to the police station and lock him up. He did not recollect a single case of a person being improperly arrested by the police for being drunk. If a policeman did so, he would be liable to an action, and surely there would be such actions brought if this thing did occur. He should support the clause as it stood.

Mr. DRIVER said the hon. member who had just sat down ought to know that there had been many actions brought against the police for improper arrest. There was the case of William Hayes against constable Dunlop, not three months ago, in which he (Mr. Driver) appeared for the constable, and the hon. member for West Macquarie appeared for the plaintiff. The hon. member for the University must have known of hundreds of such cases. In his opinion the amendment of the Colonial Secretary was fair and right. Policemen would rather run the risk of a summons than of arresting a man if they had any doubt whether he was drunk or not, because he was likely to be seen marching off with his prey to the station-house, and it generally happened that there was more than one at the station-house who could see whether the person was drunk or not. If the police did not issue the summons for a day or two, the accused might find it very difficult to get his witnesses, and the constable would know that he would have the advantage. He would not agree to give such powers to constables with the benches of magistrates such as we have in this country. The liberty of the subject was of too much importance to be trifled with in the way here proposed, and he should vote for the amendment.

Sir JOHN ROBERTSON agreed with the last speaker in what he had said with reference about persons being arrested by the police when it was doubtful whether they were drunk. But it was not proposed here to alter the law excepting to give constables the option to arrest or to summons. He would like to know who would not rather have a summons issued against him than be dragged off by the police to the lock-up. He thought this was an amendment on the present law.

Mr. DRIVER said the hon. member asked who would not rather be summoned for drunkenness than arrested. He could give the hon. member a dozen names of his own personal friends who have been arrested as often as he had fingers and toes for drunkenness, whose names never appear in the police sheets, nor in the leading journals of this city; who never appear before the police court, but some friend appears for them and pays the fine—and in some cases never gets it back. Who among us would not prefer having a summons issued? Was there a man acquainted with the way in which things are managed by the benches of magistrates in this colony who would not be a thousand times apprehended sooner than be summoned once. If a man was summoned at the Central Police Court there was the summons-sheet stuck up outside, for all the world to see, with the person's name, and against it the offence with which he was charged. There was another sheet upon the attorney's table in the Court-room, that anybody might look at and see his name there, and what he was charged with. "He is here again for drunkenness," and it was talked of all over the country. Well, three or four gentlemen went there as magistrates, and no doubt they earnestly desired to put down intemperance; but when they went to a dinner party, and there was tipsy-cake about, they were not much better than anybody else. (Hear and laughter.) He could appeal to gentlemen in that Chamber—(laughter)—he did not say hon. gentlemen did such things; but he could appeal to them to say whether he was not stating what were facts. Then in many cases men arrested for drunkenness did not give their proper names. He thought the amendment a very proper one, and he would support it.

Sir JOHN ROBERTSON said he did not know whether or not some persons who were friends of his had been arrested for drunkenness; he dare say they had, for he had a great many friends. Perhaps some friends of the hon. gentleman had been in the same position. [Mr. DRIVER: Hear, hear. They have been friends of mine too.] But what had the committee to do with that, and with what object was it brought forward? The question before the committee was whether a man would prefer being arrested or being summoned. If a man charged with drunkenness were not drunk he would certainly prefer a summons, because then he would be able to defend himself. If he were arrested he would be taken away to the lock-up, unable to go to any friend and unable to give evidence. As for the name being on the charge sheet, he apprehended that if it were such a disgraceful thing for a man charged with drunkenness to have his name there he would never get drunk any more. (Hear, hear.)

The committee divided upon the question,—"That the words proposed to be omitted stand part of the question," with the following result:—

The amendment was, therefore, carried.

Mr. WINDEYER moved that the clause be further amended by adding, after the word "convictions," "provided that every such information shall be laid within forty-eight hours of the commission of the offence alleged."

The amendment was agreed to, and the clause, as amended, was passed.

Clause 2 was proposed as follows: "2. Any person who shall for a fourth time or oftener during any period of twelve months be convicted under the Act first mentioned of either being drunk or drunk and disorderly shall, if such conviction is had before two or more justices, be liable to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any period not exceeding fourteen days."

Mr. TERRY moved the omission of the word "either" as an amendment consequent upon the one made in the preceding clause.

After some remarks from Mr. JACOB and Mr. LEARY against the proposed amendment, the committee divided on the question, "that the words proposed to be omitted stand part of the question," with the following result:—

Ayes, 19.		Noes, 22.
Leary	J. Davies	Farnell	Long

The amendment was therefore passed.

On the motion of Mr. TERRY, the words "drunk or," in the same line, were omitted.

Mr. LYNCH moved the omission of all the words after the word "liable," with the view of inserting in their place the following words: "to a penalty not exceeding 40s." He thought that would meet the justice of the case.

Mr. JACOB pointed out that that was the penalty now provided for the first offence of drunkenness.

The amendment was negatived.

The clause was further amended, on the motion of Mr. JACOB, by altering the penalty to three days instead of fourteen, and was then passed.

Mr. JACOB moved the insertion of a new clause allowing several convictions to be included in one warrant, and providing that imprisonment for drunkenness may be in watch-houses.

The clause was agreed to.

A schedule setting forth the form of the commitment warrant was also agreed to.

The preamble was passed, and the Chairman left the chair, and reported the bill with amendments to the House. The report was adopted.

BIRDS AND ANIMALS PROTECTION BILL.

Mr. DAY moved the second reading of this bill. It was introduced into the Legislative Council last session, and after a great deal of consideration there, it was sent down to this House. Mr. Thornton introduced and passed through the Upper House the present measure. Hon. members would bear in mind that the policy of this bill was not new, as an Act of this description was in force from 1866 to 1876, and that Act gave entire satisfaction. He never heard any one desire to have it repealed, but he had heard people express the wish that it should be renewed. The bill differed slightly from the original Act. It would come into force on being passed, and would remain the law so far as the first clause was concerned, for five years, and so far as regarded the second clause for ten years. The third clause, providing a penalty for trespass in pursuit of game, was a useful clause not in the former bill. The fourth clause differed from a similar provision in the old bill, in that it provided that the close season should be from the first day of October to the last of February, instead of from the 1st August to the 31st December. If hon. members did not think the time proposed was the right time for the close season, the clause could be modified. The fifth clause provided that swivel guns should not be used in shooting birds, at any season of the year. This was a very desirable clause to introduce, as it was well known to any one who had any experience in such matters that these long guns fired in among a flock of birds wounded more than they killed, and the wounded afterwards died. The sixth clause was a new one, and gave power to the Government to add any other bird to those mentioned in the schedule to be protected. The seventh was a new clause, and met a difficulty not provided for in the old Act, as it afforded protection to any reserves set apart by the Government or any private person for preserving birds. The eighth and ninth clauses were similar to clauses under the old Act. The tenth clause differed from a provision under the old Act, as it provided that two justices should adjudicate in offences instead of one. The eleventh clause gave power to the aggrieved to appeal to the Quarter Sessions. The first schedule protected eight animals, the white swan having been added to the list protected under the old law. Then the second schedule, as compared with the like schedule under the old Act, had twenty-nine kinds of birds, fourteen having been introduced. He thought hon. members acquainted with this matter would see the necessity for this bill. Birds at the close season of the year, when they were breeding, were not fit to eat, and it was simply wasteful destruction and real cruelty to kill them. Some persons might consider it to be a hardship, but he did not think it to be a hardship at all; and he hoped that hon. members would give the best consideration to the measure, and pass it into law as soon as possible.

Mr. JACOB did not disagree with the principle of the bill that certain animals should be protected. Still he thought the measure was full of imperfections not creditable to the learned gentlemen of the other Chamber, who, if such a bill had come before them from the Legislative Assembly would have criticised it very harshly. Though he should vote for the second reading, there were many amendments that should be made in it in committee. First, the bill contained an extraordinary title. He always thought that birds were animals. The simple word animals would have been sufficient. This bill professed to be for the protection of imported and native game, but he challenged any hon. member to show how it protected imported game. It dealt entirely with native game, as would be seen if the clauses were closely examined. The second clause professed to protect imported game for five years and native game for ten years. He should have thought this protection should have been vice versa. However, there was not a clause in the Act under which a person capturing imported game could be punished. The third clause was really one dealing with trespass, which was provided for in other laws. Of the 5th clause he was rather suspicious. He believed that some portions of the bill proposed to introduce some of the objectionable game laws of England. Other clauses of the bill were ambiguous and objectionable, and he would be prepared to move amendments in committee. He should do his best to eliminate the word "hare" out of the schedule, for hares were becoming far too plentiful, and they multiplied very rapidly. They ought not to protect them, for they were already a nuisance. And in his experience the black and white magpies were very injurious. It seemed to him that this bill proposed to over legislate in this matter, and it would, in his opinion, be really better to have it considered by a select committee.

Mr. COPELAND intended to support the second reading of the bill, although some of its clauses were objectionable. Clause 4 prohibited persons from trespassing on enclosed land, but it ought to be remembered that much of the enclosed land was merely leased land, and that some of the paddocks were five miles square. The clause as it stood would debar a bushman from carrying a gun across such enclosed land. It was an objectionable feature of the bill that it proposed to give a moiety of the fine to the informer. The tendency of that provision would be to induce persons to get up false charges for the sake of the reward, or for the gratification of a malicious feeling. All fines ought to form part of the public revenue. He saw that the pelican was to be protected, and was at a loss to know what for. Each pelican consumed more young fish than any family could eat, supposing they lived wholly on fish; and, as fish were very valuable for food, there was reason why we should seek to prevent their wholesale destruction.

Mr. F. B. SUTTOR thought the House ought either to affirm or reject the bill. He believed in the principle of the bill, and should support the second reading; but when we got into committee nearly every clause would have to be amended, and in fact altogether remodelled. If the bill passed in its present shape it would not carry out the objects of the promoters, which was to protect imported game. We ought to encourage those who had gone to considerable expense in importing valuable birds and animals. A great deal had been said about hares. He did not think that hares had yet become a nuisance in the Bathurst district, but he admitted it was quite likely they might become so. About five years ago forty hares were turned out on the Bathurst Plains, about half of which died from the effects of the voyage from Melbourne. Now there must be thousands of hares in that district, and the most sanguine supporter of coursing need have no fear of any scarcity. Last night he presented twelve petitions from farmers in the Bathurst district who complained that their pursuits would be seriously interfered with, if hares were to be protected as proposed in the bill. The bill, however, was so badly drawn that hares would be protected even against coursing, the purpose for which they had been introduced. It was difficult in a colony like this to make a close season applicable to all districts. In some districts young birds were on full wing before the eggs were laid in others.

Sir JOHN ROBERTSON proposed taking the same course with regard to this bill as the hon. member who had just sat down. The 3rd clause would have to be amended so as to exclude all Crown lands. There were fenced paddocks twenty miles long. Surely it was not intended to withdraw these from the public. It ought also to be provided that the land referred to in the 7th clause was owned by the individual, and was not Crown land. He recommended that there should be three game districts for the northern, western, and southern portions of the colony, and that the close season in each should be proclaimed by the Governor in Council. Time ought to be allowed for the consideration of the bill after the second reading.

Mr. CHARLES protested against the use of swivel guns as causing a wanton slaughter of game. The white feathered sea eagle was most destructive to poultry, lambs, and young pigs, and there was no sufficient reason why the bird known as the oyster-catcher should be protected. He should vote for the second reading, because he believed it was necessary that imported and native game should be protected.

The question was put, and the second reading was agreed to. The House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole pro formâ. Progress was then reported, and leave given to sit again.

BEER'S DISABILITY BILL.

Mr. HURLEY (Hartley), in moving the second reading of this bill said, he believed the statements made when he moved the second reading of the same bill last session, by the hon. member for Newcastle, Dr. Bowker, had had a good deal to do with the rejection of the bill. But with all respect to the hon. member for Newcastle, he thought the testimony of Sir Benjamin Brodie, Pereira, Thompson, Christieson, and others, ought to outweigh even the opinion of the hon. member. Sir Benjamin Brodie said it was absurd in the extreme to find him guilty of attempting to procure abortion by the use of belladonna, for that medicine would rather prevent abortion than procure it. They had Professor Smith's opinion to the same effect. Dr. Beer had been tried on two charges—one of administering belladonna with a view to procure abortion, and the other was a charge of endeavouring to procure this woman's death in order to participate in the benefits of some insurance upon her life. Now, it was conclusively shown that the first charge failed by the medical testimony, which proved that belladonna would rather prevent abortion than procure it; and, in reply to the second charge, it was shown that, so far from Dr. Beer having any interest in the benefits of this life assurance, he had actually been to a legal man in this city with a view to get all these benefits settled upon Mrs. Brown's children. He pointed out that Dr. Beer had been released after serving five years at Cockatoo. He then went to Shanghai, where he got a good practice, but was forced to leave as soon as it became known that he had been a convict in New South Wales. He then went to Calcutta, where he again got up a good practice, but had to leave from the same cause. He then determined to come back and face it out here. Dr. Beer did not seek for compensation; he only sought to have the stigma removed from his name, and to have the record of his conviction erased from among the records of the colony.

Dr. BOWKER said he might have an exaggerated notion of the importance of the high respectability and the high honour of the medical profession, but if hon. members would think the matter over they would see that if we did not keep up this respectability and this honour society would be very greatly the sufferers. (Hear, hear.) We depended on the honour, the truth, and the knowledge of medical men in so many matters of importance that we could not afford to let an occasion of this kind go by without the greatest consideration. A jury of our country after hearing the evidence in this case found the gentleman guilty—(hear, hear)—and we ought not to do anything to subvert that verdict, or throw ridicule upon it without having the best reasons for doing so. (Hear, hear.) And if the House were to do that now they would be doing it without the best reasons. A very earnest and eloquent advocate had addressed the House upon the legal points of the question, and the hon. member for Hartley had ably moved the second reading of the bill. That hon. member believed he was right; he (Dr. Bowker) believed the hon. member was wrong. But before they attempted to subvert the opinion of the Judge and the jury who tried the case they should have a barrister before the House to speak on the other side, and for that reason alone the House should hesitate before they passed this bill. A great deal had been said as to the opinions of medical men at home upon this matter. This did not pertain very much to the question, but it was necessary to remark upon the circumstance. Sir Benjamin Brodie was a surgeon, of whom England would always be proud, but he had not had very much experience in the business of an accoucheur, and his letter did not bear internal evidence of very good judgment in this matter. He (Dr. Bowker) was surprised that the letter had been brought forward at all, for Sir Benjamin Brodie admitted the danger of the remedy—that it was prescribed in imprudent doses. In another part of the letter where Sir Benjamin Brodie seemed to be in favour of the use made of the belladonna, he spoke unguardedly of belladonna not procuring abortion. [The hon. member produced and quoted several authorities to show that narcotics such as belladonna would procure abortion.] The dose given was a dangerous one, and he said it without fear of contradiction. [The hon. member quoted largely from Mrs. Brown's evidence given at the trial of Dr. Beer, and expressed the opinion that the symptoms described by her were symptoms of poisoning by belladonna, and that the dose administered was, as stated by Sir Benjamin Brodie, a very dangerous one.] For this reason we ought to be very careful in passing this bill. He read Mr. Brown's evidence with reference to the insurance policies, contending that Dr. Beer's conduct in respect to them was suspicious. Dr. Beer did not come with clean hands, but, on the contrary, with exceedingly dirty hands, before Parliament, and therefore the House should not pass this bill except after very mature deliberation. He could not believe the House would pass this bill, which was calculated to throw ridicule upon our legal institutions, and to discredit the high position of British medical men.

The House divided, on the motion for the second reading, with the following result:—

Ayes, 15.		Noes, 18.
Windeyer	Lynch	Robertson	M'Culloch
Leary	Thompson	Hungerford	M'Elhone
Greville	Beyers	J. Davies	Day
Macintosh	Copeland	Lackey	Hoskins
Murphy	Bennett	Fitzpatrick	Bowker
Terry	Hurley (H.) }	Gray	Coonan
Driver	Badgery }	Farnell	Charles }
Barbour	Tellers.	Bowman	Jacob }
		Greenwood	Tellers.
		W. Davies

Pairs: Mr. R. B. Smith for, Mr. H. H. Brown against.

On the motion of Mr. CHARLES the order of the day was discharged.

On the motion of Mr. CHARLES, that the bill be withdrawn,

Mr. HURLEY (Hartley) addressed the House on the medical evidence which had been introduced, and to discredit the credibility of the witness Brown. He denied that Dr. Beer was interested in one of the policies.

Mr. GRAY said that a select committee sat on the case sixteen years ago, when the evidence against Dr. Beer created the impression in the minds of impartial persons that he had been guilty of wrongdoing. This House was not the place in which to review the verdict of a jury.

Mr. DRIVER denied that the investigation of the select committee of the House was of the character referred to, and contended that Dr. Beer's persistency was the best proof of the honesty and innocence of that gentleman. He should vote for the second reading of this bill whenever introduced.

Mr. M'ELHONE denied that his vote had been influenced by Dr. Bowker in any way. He had been inclined to support this bill until he had heard Mr. Walter Cooper in that House accuse Dr. Bennett, Dr. Nathan, and some of our most eminent medical men of being perjurers to a man. Anyone who read the evidence impartially must come to the conclusion that Dr. Bear was innocent.

Mr. HURLEY (Hartley) explained that what he said was that Dr. Bowker's speech had influenced hon. members.

Dr. BOWKER said he had only acted from a sense of duty in this matter, and he had no wish to injure the party concerned.

Mr. WINDEYER thought that the pertinacious efforts of Dr. Beer to establish his innocence were very strongly in that gentleman's favour.

Mr. LEARY explained that he had voted for the second reading of the bill because he had read the whole of the case very attentively, and no jury would ever have convicted Dr. Beer had it not been for the circumstances connected with this insurance business.

Mr. FITZPATRICK thought it was to be deprecated that hon. members of that House, with their imperfect knowledge of these matters, should attempt to say whether Dr. Beer was guilty or not. This case depended upon a very intricate medical subject, which few hon. members of that House knew anything about. That House ought not to be a place of appeal for cases like this—an appeal from the decision of a jury. It was absolutely sickening to hear the hon. mover in this matter speak about Mr. and Mrs. Brown in the manner he had done.

Mr. TERRY differed from the opinion of the last speaker, for he thought that House was a very proper Court for Dr. Beer to appeal to. He believed the second reading of the bill would have been agreed to had it not been for the speech of Dr. Bowker.

Mr. M'CULLOCH said he had felt a very strong interest in this case; he had read all the evidence, and he had come to the conclusion that Dr. Beer was guilty. He had, therefore, done all he could to prevent the passing of the bill.

Mr. DAY said that he voted against the bill because he thought the House was not the proper tribunal to try cases of this description, and that the jury who tried the case were in a much better position to do so than the House was. Then, a select committee had reported against the bill, and Dr. Beer did not appear to him to have come to this House with clean hands. The conclusion he (Mr. Day) had arrived at was that the decision of the jury was a right one.

Mr. W. DAVIES protested against the unmeasured and uncalled-for terms in which some of the witnesses in this case had been alluded to. A very great deal had transpired with reference to this case in the House which did not reflect much credit upon it. The case had been as fully ventilated as possible, and he did not think that the House would alter the decision it had given.

The motion that the bill be withdrawn was then agreed to.

The House adjourned at sixteen minutes past 10 until 4 p.m. on Tuesday next.

SHIPMENT OF SHEEP PER GUNGA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—On arriving in Sydney yesterday, my attention was called to a paragraph in the Herald of the 17th ultimo, and to two letters in a later issue, having reference to a shipment of sheep by the last voyage of the steamship Gunga to Noumea. It will require but few words from me to demonstrate the gross misstatements and exaggerations made in the above, inasmuch as of 312 sheep—the gross number shipped by the Gunga, and not 400 to 500, as estimated by your informant—only one died on the trip, and this in spite of a rough-weather passage, necessitating the hatches being battened down for two days, thus proving that no illtreatment can have been exercised on the animals at time of shipment. Of the remaining 311, 297 were landed at Noumea in excellent condition, and 21 equally prime retained by the provedores for the steamer's use, three having been consumed on the trip across. I may further mention that it being to the interest of the ship to do every possible justice to the live stock she carries, it is highly improbable that any ill usage would be sanctioned by her officers, and, having personally supervised the shipment of the sheep in question, I can vouch for every care having been practised. I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

EDWARD CAREY,
Second officer s.s. Gunga.

The Duke of Edinburgh completed his thirty-fourth year on August 6. This was celebrated at Windsor by the bells of St. George's Chapel and of the parish church ringing during the day, and by a Royal salute of twenty-one guns being fired in the Long-walk.

Mr. H. W. S., Melbourne.—My dear Friend,—You tell me that I must be very happy in getting rid of those headaches to which I was, like you, so frequently subject. Make use, as I did, of GRIMAULT'S GUARANA and you shall wonder at its marvellous results. JOHN SMITH. Liverpool.—ADV.

COURT OF QUARTER SESSIONS.—FRIDAY.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge DOWLING.)

The Court resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

Samuel Thomas, the man who was concerned in the match-box trick with the newly-arrived immigrant, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, with hard labour. His Honor remarked that this man evidently belonged to a very dangerous class.

Patrick Kelly, who had been arraigned upon three charges of obtaining goods under false pretences, and on each occasion under different names, had a very indifferent character given him by sergeant Larkins, and against him two previous convictions were proved. The sentence in the last having only been completed two months ago, he was sentenced to four years in Maitland gaol. His Honor expressed his surprise that business men like Mr. Anthony Hordern and Mr. Zions could be so foolish as to take these cheques for such large sums without inquiry.

William Feavyer, who had pleaded guilty to a similar charge to the one above mentioned, was sentenced to six months in Maitland gaol, with hard labour.

The four boys—Hart, Slade, Moon, and Hampson—were called up for sentence. Mr. Hampson, sen., called the attention of his Honor to a mistake in the S. M. Herald's report, in which it was said that he had stated that his boy "had been educated at King's School. It was the boy's brother who was educated there. Moreover, it was asserted that he had said 'the boy was incorrigible.'" His Honor said "he had understood the very same thing the Herald's reporter had, and, in fact, had made a remark to that effect. Mr. Hampson might not have meant that his son was 'incorrigible,' but he evidently left the impression on the mind of the Court that he was. As far as the report was concerned, he considered it only his duty to strongly compliment the representative of the Herald upon its accuracy, and he had read it with much satisfaction." In this case all the boys had been employed in good trades. The sentence was fourteen days in Darlinghurst gaol in solitary confinement.

His HONOR personally requested the reporter of the S. M. Herald, for the sake of the Rev. Mr. Macarthur, who had the credit of invariably turning out his boys gentlemen, that Mr. Hampson's explanation should appear in the Press.

FELONIOUSLY WOUNDING.

James Heaney was charged with wounding Alice Sophia Middleton. He pleaded not guilty, and was undefended. The prosecutrix was barmaid in the European Hotel, and the fact was that the prisoner, who was drinking there, whether by accident or design, flung a tumbler which struck her in the face, cutting her across the nose and severely injuring her temple. The prisoner said that he had a dispute with a sailor, with whom he was drinking, and in defending himself from attack he threw the tumbler at the sailor's head, and missing his aim, struck the prosecutrix; but his defence was weakened by the latter asserting that the prisoner was lying drunk, and to bring him to his senses she put some cold water on his face, and that he resented it by deliberately throwing the tumbler at her head. The jury found the prisoner guilty of the intent to do grievous bodily harm. A previous conviction for assault during the present year was put in against him, for which he had undergone two months' imprisonment, and he was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, in Maitland gaol.

EMBEZZLEMENT.

Thomas M'Carthy was charged on three counts with embezzling sundry sums of money from Henry Wilson, butcher. He pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr. T. M. Williamson. The case was entirely devoid of public interest, as it arose out of the prisoner having made sundry collections for his master for which he never properly accounted. The defence was that Mr. Wilson, his wife, and his son severally received moneys from the prisoner, irregularities had taken place in the keeping of the books, and that the evidence failed to sustain the charges. The jury, after a short absence, acquitted the prisoner, but he was remanded on another charge.

At the commencement of the afternoon sittings, his Honor called in the four boys who had been sentenced during the morning, and altered the sentence in each case to fourteen days' imprisonment in Darlinghurst gaol, the first three and the last three only in solitary confinement, instead of the whole period, as in the original sentence.

INFLICTING GRIEVOUS BODILY HARM.

Alfred M'Intosh was charged with inflicting grievous bodily harm on William James Lodge.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr. Pilcher, instructed by Mr. C. B. Pitt.

The parties resided at Botany, and it seems had a dispute about some land. The defendant and two others came upon the land, and being ordered off by the prosecutor a scuffle took place with fists, which ended in prosecutor's favour, and the defendant and his friends were driven off. More threatening then ensued, when hoe-handles and sticks came into requisition, and amongst other things was a long bamboo pole, which, being wielded by the defendant, was brought down on the head of the prosecutor, and the damage done resulted in the above charge.

The evidence pro and con entirely turned upon whether the violent conduct of the prosecutor, and his threatening attitude towards the defendant did not justify retaliation of an equally violent character in self-defence, and in describing the affray the witnesses contradicted each other point blank on many points. The prosecutor had received a pretty severe scalp wound in the encounter, but no serious injury had been done. An excellent character was given the defendant.

His HONOR put the case to the jury as entirely a question of credibility of the witnesses on one side or the other, and that if there was a reasonable doubt prisoner must get the benefit of it. The reply to the charge was that the blow was struck in self-defence. The question was whether this was made out.

The jury, after an absence of an hour and a half, acquitted the prisoner.

The recognizances of Eliza Whitney, in the case of Mary Dignam, were ordered to be estreated.

The Court then adjourned until Monday at 10 o'clock.

In the report of the case of Thomas Rush, who was charged with stealing from the person of a man-o'-war's man, an inaccuracy has been pointed out in the statement being made that the robbery was committed in a brothel. Upon further inquiry we find that the robbery was committed outside the door of a brothel in Fowler-street, off Sussex-street.

The following cases have been set down for hearing on Monday:—Kate Morton, stealing from the person; Charles Snelling, perjury; Joseph F. Brady, stealing in a dwelling; Ann Talbot, stealing from the person; Mary Dignum, inflicting grievous bodily harm; Eliza Maddocks, assault occasioning actual bodily harm; David Ravey, inflicting grievous bodily harm; Thomas M'Carthy, embezzlement; Mary Akehurst, attempt to commit suicide; Mark West, stealing from the person; William Carroll, assaulting a constable in the execution of his duty.

FRIDAY.

(Before the POLICE MAGISTRATE, with Messrs. JOLLY, READING, THOMAS, and SKARRATT.)

Eleven persons were fined for drunkenness.

William Smith, found guilty of having given expression to language, pronounced by the Bench to be both indecent and blasphemous, was sentenced to pay a penalty of £5, or to be imprisoned three months. Margaret Denis was sentenced to pay 20s., or to be imprisoned seven days; and Kate M'Crae to pay 40s. or to be imprisoned one month, in addition to previous sentences for drunkenness, on conviction of having made use of obscene language.

Harriet Pinketh was sentenced to be imprisoned one month, and James Woodward to be imprisoned six months, on conviction of vagrancy.

Margaret Burns, charged with having stolen a table-cover, valued at 5s., the property of George Mills, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to pay a penalty of 10s., or to be imprisoned four days.

Mary Cherry was called upon to account for her possession of a pair of trousers, and failing to satisfy the justices, was sentenced to be imprisoned three months.

George Bolam, 13, charged under the Industrial Schools' Act with having been found wandering about the streets in no ostensible lawful occupation, was ordered to be sent on board the Vernon training ship.

(Before Messrs. OATLEY, FRASER, HOURIGAN, and BAILEY.)

On the summons paper were fifty-five cases, of which five were not prosecuted, two were dismissed, two were postponed, and in two warrants were issued for the apprehension of the defendants. Solomon Nathan, Henry Burrows, and Adolph T. Brown were fined 10s. each, and Louis Heuschkel and Roderick Dhu 20s each, for selling at prohibited hours; Thomas Selby, Margaret Wood, and Jane Crawford were fined 2s. 6d. for conveying liquor from public-houses within the prohibited hours of Sunday; Daniel O'Brien, Thomas Wilkins, Mary M'Inelly, Joseph Moss, and William White were fined, some 5s. and others 10s., for using indecent language; Mary Holly was fined 20s. for being the keeper of a ferocious dog; twenty persons were fined in sums varying from 2s. 6d. to 10s., for minor offences against the Police Act; and in Morris v. Morris, a suit for maintenance, an order was taken by consent.

LICENSING.—The publican's license held by Frederick Yielding was transferred to James Loder. A hawker's license was granted to Henry Tubb.

WATER POLICE COURT.

FRIDAY.

(Before Messrs. LESTER, FOWLER, GOODRIDGE, and CALLAGHAN.)

Twenty cases of drunkenness and three of disorderly conduct were disposed of.

Lydia May was fined 10s., with the alternative of four days' imprisonment, for using obscene language in Dowling-street; and Mary Dowling, for using indecent language in Palmer-street, was sentenced to pay 40s., or go to gaol for one month.

Thomas Cuddy, 18, was charged with stealing three empty cases, value 6s., the property of Captain Hynes, of the steamship Whampoa. On Thursday evening the prisoner was on Queen's Wharf with a number of other young larrikins causing a good deal of annoyance to those on the wharf by their misconduct. A quantity of empty cases were on the wharf, having been discharged from the steamship Whampoa. The prisoner who made himself very conspicuous by his misconduct, finally made off with three of the cases, for which he was given in charge of the police by Captain Hynes. The prisoner, who has lately left the Vernon training ship, received a very bad character from the police. The Bench thought it was high time to put an end to the petty thieving of boys on the wharfs, and sentenced the prisoner to three months in gaol.

William Shelly, charged with assaulting a Chinaman named Ah Wi, by striking him on the face, was sentenced to pay 40s., or go to gaol for one month.

George Burnett Whittington was charged with stealing a gold cameo ring, valued at £5, and the sum of £4 9s., the property of Alice Campbell. The prosecutrix keeps a lodging-house at 37, Kent-street. On the 9th of last month the prisoner occupied a room in her house, his bedroom door being opposite that of the prosecutrix and divided from it by a narrow passage. The prosecutrix deposed to having left the ring and a purse containing £4 9s. on the table in her bedroom at 11 o'clock on the morning of the date referred to. At half-past 11 she returned and found that both the ring and the purse containing the money were missing; she never saw the prisoner after missing the valuables. It was also proved that a cameo ring, which the prosecutrix identified as the one which had been taken from her room, had been pawned by the prisoner with a pawnbroker named Samuel Cantor, who resides in Castlereagh-street. The prisoner was committed to take his trial at the next sittings of the Central Criminal Court. Bail allowed, the prisoner in £50, and two sureties in £50 each.

(Before Messrs. SMART and CHARLTON.)

On the summons sheet were fifty-four cases, of which sixteen were not prosecuted, and six were postponed. Six persons were fined severally £2, and £1 1s. professional costs, for keeping filthy premises. Twenty-four persons were fined in small sums for various breaches of the municipal by-laws. A cabdriver, named Michael Cullen, was fined £5 for refusing to show his license when requested to do so by inspector Oram. John North was ordered to pay 7s. 6d. a week for two years, for the support of his illegitimate child.

(Before Messrs. SMART, CHARLTON, and LUCAS.)

LICENSING BUSINESS.—The license of the Old Cheshire Cheese Hotel, Windmill-street, was transferred from John Peter to Michael O'Connell. A bagatelle license was granted to Richard Smith, and a special auctioneer's license to James Pringle.

MR. GLADSTONE AND THE JEWS.—Mr. Gladstone having been written to by a member of the Jewish community in Liverpool respecting the newspaper reports of his remarks in the House of Commons on Tuesday week, in reference to Lord Beaconsfield's action regarding the emancipation of the Jews, says: "Neither report is accurate, nor is the expression ambiguous. My words described Lord Beaconsfield's conduct about Jewish disabilities as honourable to him. So I think it, and I am glad of the opportunity of so describing it."

SUPREME COURT, MELBOURNE.—New Court-house, Thursday, September 19.—Sittings in Equity—Appellate Jurisdiction.—(Before their Honors the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Barry.)—Wolfe v. Hart. This was an appeal by the defendant, Mr. H. J. Hart, against an injunction granted by Mr. Justice Molesworth, restraining him, at the suit of the plaintiff, Mr. Wolfe, from selling "Imperial Schiedam Schnapps" in bottles with labels imitated, or colourably imitated, from bottles with labels of Udolpho Wolfe's Aromatic Schiedam Schnapps. The plaintiff had also sought for an injunction against the use by the defendant of the words "Schiedam Schnapps," but his Honor had refused that, limiting his injunction to the bottles and the labels. The defendant appealed, on the ground that there was no imitation of either; and it was pointed out that, in many respects, the two labels differed from each other. The same affidavits were used as in the application before Mr. Justice Molesworth. Mr. Higinbotham, Mr. Worthington, and Mr. Hamilton were for the defendant (the appellant); Mr. Holroyd and Mr. Webb for the plaintiff (the respondent). The Chief Justice said:—This is an appeal from an order of the primary judge, granting an interlocutory injunction against the use, by the defendant, of bottles with labels bearing colourable imitations of the plaintiff's. It is said, as a reason for our interposing, that there will take place an unusually long interval between the granting of the injunction and the hearing of the suit. If there are any special circumstances of hardship, they would have afforded grounds for imposing some special conditions on the plaintiff; but either those circumstances were not brought before the Judge, or he declined to act upon them, and in either case we cannot interfere. The learned Judge has determined that the plaintiff has not established his right to the exclusive use of the name "Schiedam Schnapps." That point has been mentioned to us, and, although we are of opinion that the plaintiff need not lodge a cross-appeal to enable us to entertain the question, we think that it is unnecessary for us to decide that question now one way or the other, because we concur in the conclusion at which the learned Judge has arrived on the other point. We are asked by the defendant to consider separately the bottles, the wrappers, and the embossments on the bottles, and various other circumstances in detail, and decide what conclusion any person would arrive at who took them all in detail. As it appears to me, we are not to take that course, which pre-supposes that both the original and the alleged imposition are present to the person who is about purchasing. It is very seldom that would be so. Nor do I concur in the argument that we are to consider the intelligence, or want of intelligence, of the purchaser. We are not to pronounce a decision which would be applicable to the one and inapplicable to the other. We are not to ignore altogether an uneducated and illiterate person who may desire to ascertain whether the article he is about to purchase is the same that he has had before. Looking at it in that way, we are to consider how the infringement of the plaintiff's right is proved, not by taking particular isolated points, but by looking at the general resemblance of the two labels and bottles. A person has had a bottle of a particular kind of gin, and he wishes to get some more of the same kind. He remembers not the precise details, but only the general appearance of the package, and whether the article produced to him corresponds substantially with his recollection of what he had before. He supposes it to be the same; and if it is not, he is misled and imposed upon. I think in this case a man may exercise fair intelligence and yet be misled. There is a singular combination presented of substantial similarity with unsubstantial dissimilarity. Without resting upon any one particular, but taking the whole—the labels, the bottles, the embossments, the colour of the packages and the colour of the ink—all present a substantial similarity which is most striking. It would appear to me as if there was a desire evinced by the appellant to approach near to the similarity, and yet to evade the law. I think this calculated not only to mislead, but it is a colourable imitation presented in such a way as renders it difficult to say, under all the circumstances, that this similarity is accidental. It is almost forced on one's mind that it was done carefully and deliberately to see how near the defendant could go, and at the same time escape litigation. The defendant had been in a position to enable him to know exactly all these details. Even were the circumstances not so clear as they are in this instance, I should be slow to interfere with the decision of the primary judge. He has the conduct of the suit, and must be allowed a great discretion as to conserving the corpus of the matter in litigation, or prevent injury to the suitor; but as the case has been presented to me, I must say I would have arrived at the same conclusion as the learned judge did. We are next asked to make an order, if the appeal is dismissed, to protect the appellant from any loss to which he would be subjected should the plaintiff not ultimately succeed in the suit. In other words, we are asked to impose as one of the terms of the injunction that the plaintiff should undertake to pay any damage the defendant may sustain should the bill at the hearing be dismissed. That is not one of the grounds of the appeal, and is a point not raised previously. There is no suggestion that the plaintiff is impecunious, and would be unable to pay any damages the defendant might recover against him. This practice has not hitherto been adopted here, and it is questionable whether, in the absence of special legislation, this Court can adopt it. The appeal will be dismissed. Mr. Justice Barry: I concur in the opinion that the appeal should be dismissed. There is an unsubstantial distinction between the two articles; and there is a great deal of resemblance on all the main points. The general features of the two are conspicuously the same throughout. Looking at all the features, it is impossible to say that they are not substantially the same. Appeal against the grant of the injunction dismissed.—ADV.

The schooner Sir I. Newton left Sydney on March 27, and has been cruising among the islands forming the Solomon group. She is last from St. Christoval, whence she sailed on September 13. Strong S.E. winds have been experienced during the passage across. Captain Cable also brings the pleasing intelligence that Captain Daley, of the Heather Belle, an old island trader, and of whose safety some fears have been entertained, is reported by the cutter Leelia as being all right, and refitting his vessel at Makera (St. Christoval), on the 11th September.

The U. S. S. Company's fine ship Wakatipu arrived in harbour at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, but was compelled to remain at the Heads owing to a dense fog. She brings a full complement of passengers and a large cargo of New Zealand produce. With respect to her passage, we learn that the Wakatipu left Otago on the 25th, Lyttelton 27th, and Wellington 29th September, arriving at Sydney as above. Fresh winds and high seas have marked the passage throughout. Captain Wheeler reports that, when 110 miles E.N.E. of Sydney Heads, he fell in with the barque Java, from Newcastle 27th ultimo, to Singapore, with 800 tons coal. She had lost her fore topmast and main topgallant-mast, and was making for this port.)

The (s.) Macedon cleared Port Phillip at 6.30 p.m. 1st instant, rounded Wilson's Promontory at 5.30 a.m. 2nd instant, was off Gabo Island at midnight, landed passengers and stores, and rounded Gabo Island 1.30 a.m. 3rd instant, entered Sydney Heads at 6.30 a.m. 4th instant. Experienced light and variable winds to Montague Island, thence to Botany Bay fresh N.E. winds, the remainder of the passage calm, foggy weather; at 5.30 a.m. stopped the engines in a dense fog 3 miles off the South Head Light; at 6.15 a.m. fog cleared up and entered the Heads as above.

The cargo of the Ballina consists of 777 bags maize, 65 bags oysters, 25 bags bacon, 63 hides, 11 cases eggs, 5 coops fowls, 2 casks wine, 2 horses, 178 pigs, and sundries.

Consequent on the arrival of the new steamship Leura, there will be a number of changes in the commands of the other steamers of Captain W. Howard Smith's fleet. Captain John Pain, who has just completed his 109th trip to and from Sydney in the Barrabool, will take the new steamer, and Captain J. R. Clark, of the Cheviot, will succeed Captain Pain in the Barrabool. Captain Stanford goes into the Cheviot, and his place in the Macedon will be taken by Captain Ashford, whose steamer, the You Yangs, will be given to Captain Postle, formerly chief officer of the Barrabool. The Leura during yesterday had quite a collection of visitors, and her general appearance was spoken of most favourably. She went up the river to the wharf early in the morning.—Argus, Oct. 2.

The Garonne (s.) has cleared for London, via Melbourne and Adelaide, with 4104 ingots tin, 16 bales wool, 5192 ingots copper, 168 cases pearlshell, 35 packages sundries.

The depression visible in the Stock and Share market at the close of last week has since increased. Only a limited number of sales were reported, and several of these at lower prices. Bank shares dull. City sold at 10½, and are wanted; sellers at 10⅝. Commercial fell to-day to 98½, sellers. Joint Stock brought 13⅝, and offered at 13¾. Mercantile had sales at £5 14s. to 5¾ for fully paid, £4 8s. 6d. for new issue. New Zealands are a trifle better, 24½ paid and offered, holders asking 5s. more. New South Wales wanted at 51, sellers at 51½. National of Queensland changed hands at 6¾, and were offered. The feeling in debentures was also in favour of buyers. New South Wales long dated fives offered to-day at 107½ without meeting a market. Queensland fours fell to 90 sellers, sixes offered at 115, and New Zealand fives at par. The demand for insurance stock was less active, Australian Fire offered at 6s.; City sold at 1s. 11d. to 2s., closing with sellers at the latter; Mercantile dealt in at 2s. 5d., and wanted at 1d. advance; General have sellers at 57s.; Pacific, buyers at 36s. 6d.; New South Wales at 37s., and Sydney Marine at 21s. Gaslight flat, sellers of fully paid at 13, and of new issue at 6¼. The only steam shares dealt in were Australasian at 17 to 17¼, a slight advance on last week's rates; Clarence and Richmond offered at 7½; Hunter River at 7½; and Illawarra at 6¾. The tone of coal shares has been to lower values; Bulli fell to 13½, Wallsend to 15½, sales and offered; Waratah had sellers at 7. Shale Oil have improved a trifle, buyers now at 13s. 3d., sellers at 18s. 9d. Great Cobar Copper held for 9s. 6d. Sales of Volunteer land orders at 112½ to 113. The course of sales this week has been—City Bank, 10½; Joint Stock, 13⅝; Mercantile, fully paid, 5¾, £5 14s., 5¾, new issue £4 8s. 6d.; New Zealand, 24½; National of Queensland, 5⅞; City Insurance, 1s. 11d. to 2s.; Mercantile, 2s. 5d.; Bulli Coal, 13¼; Wallsend, 15½; Band and Albion Gold, 7s. 6d., 8s. Australasian Steam, 17, 17¼. Volunteer land orders, 112½ to 113.

The produce sales held to-day by Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Messrs. Maiden, Hill, and Clark, Mr. Barker, Messrs. Mort and Co., and Mr. Bridge, were not an improvement on those of last Friday. Heavy weight hides maintained their value tolerably well, one lot realizing 4½d, others from 3¼d. to 3¾d.; light and inferior were easier. The demand for tallow was not large, and values did not advance. Kangaroo skins were lower, 1s. being the highest price obtained, and small sold at 8d. Horse hides brought from 1s. to 5s. 3d.; calfskins, 6d. to 2s. 8d.; yearlings, 3s. to 5s.; goat, 9d.; wallaby, 4d.; pig, 3s. Horns, 10s. to 30s. Shankbones, £8 to £12 10s. Ground bark, £7.

The closing quotations for colonial produce were: Maize, 4s.; oaten hay, £3 10s. to £5 10s.; lucerne, £3 to £3 10s.; cheese, 6d. to 8d.; bacon, 6d. to 9d.; potatoes, £3 10s. to £4 10s.

Trade matters were rather flat in the early part of the week owing to the absence of advices from England, through the breakdown of the cable, and also to the uncertainty of how the 4th would pass off. There have been some requests for renewals from country storekeepers, but, on the whole, the quarter-day has passed over satisfactorily. The feeling in breadstuffs has been more favourable to buyers of both wheat and flour. The value of the former having declined 3d. per bushel, and the latter being about 10s. per ton lower—say best wheat, 5s. 6d.; flour, £13; cash, £13 10s.; terms for small lots of best. Building materials have had a slow sale at previous quotations; colonial hardwood and Richmond pine have risen 2s. per 100 feet. A quantity of colonial slates sold under the hammer to-day, at up to £10 5s. for Duchess size. A shipment of American doors brought late rates. Candles are without improvement. Sales of imported at 8½d. to 9d. There is a little doing in Ceylon coffee at 13½d. to 14d.; Java is rather scarce, but a supply is looked for per steamer. Chicory steady at 3d. in bond. No change has taken place in the value of drugs and chemicals. In Dundee goods we note a slight decline in the value of woolpacks, Scotch-made having been sold at a concession on 3s. 7d. Cornsacks are nominally worth 10s., with sales only of a few bales at a time. Fruits are improving, sales of currants made at 5¼d. to 5½d., and 5d. paid for a parcel slightly faulty. Muscatel raisins, figs, and jordan almonds, if good, command better prices than they have for several months. No alterations have taken place in groceries and oilmen's stores, sales limited to the usual trade requirements. Hops are steady. A shipment of Californian is just landed, but a sale not yet reported. The malt market is firm at 9s. 6d. for good samples, 8s. 9d. accepted for a line of inferior. Metals move slowly. Galvanized iron is slightly better, but still leaves a loss. Fencing wire has had a limited sale at up to £16 10s., yellow metal plentiful at 7½d.; pig iron unaltered. Oils are unchanged. Kerosene has been selling at 1s. 8½d. to 1s. 9½d. for ordinary—Light of the Age quoted at 2s. 4d. Castor oil per Torres Straits steamers is firm, as most of the lots coming from Melbourne arrive in a faulty condition. Linseed remains at about 3s. 10d. for half and half, in drums. The liquor market has not altered to any extent. A line of Martell's dark brandy, and pale in wood, changed hands to-day at 9s., and 32s. 9d. was paid for a trade lot of Hennessy's case. Second brands are inquired for at 6s. 9d. to 7s. 3d. Rum steady at 3s. 3d. to 3s. 8d. for imported, 2s. 3d. to 2s. 5d. for colonial. Bulk and bottled beer remains firm. Whisky in good demand, and prices firm. There is nothing new to notice in rice; quotations range from £20 to £25 for good to best. Colonial sugars are easier. A quantity was offered by auction this week and was nearly all withdrawn at vendors' reserves. The William Manson's cargo of tea, now in course of being landed, will be brought to the hammer next week. It includes a large proportion of fine in 12-lb. boxes.

A Man of Business.—A correspondent of the Natal Mercury writes from Mount Frere:—"I have had some conversation with Makaula, chief of the Bacas, a fat jolly-looking man, on the subject of the Griqua contest. Among the statements he made to me was this:—'Blyth told me to go and look for Smith Pommer, find him, and bring Smith Pommer to him. I went, I looked for Smith Pommer, I found him and killed him, and brought him to Kokstadt, and I put him down at Blyth's feet, and said, "There's Smith Pommer."'"

SUMMARY OF NEWS FOR EUROPE.

The Summary of Colonial News for transmission to Europe, via San Francisco, by the Pacific Mail Company's steamship Zealandia, will be published in this journal on Thursday next, the 10th of October. Orders for extra copies should be lodged with the clerk at the counter on Wednesday. Our friends in the country are reminded that orders to post for England will be too late after Thursday morning's mail.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1878.

In the Legislative, Assembly yesterday,

Questions were asked by Messrs. Dangar, Beyers, Lynch, and Day, and answered by Ministers.

Leave was given to Mr. Driver to bring in a bill to incorporate the Sydney Infirmary and Dispensary. The bill was brought in, and read a first time.

Mr. Cohen moved for a Committee of the Whole to consider, on Wednesday next, the expediency of bringing in a bill to amend the laws relating to public and private sufferance wharfs.

Mr. Jacob moved the second reading of the Drunkards' Punishment Act Amendment Bill. The object of the bill was to enable a magistrate to bring an offender into Court for trial by summons instead of by arrest only, as at present. The second clause provided for imprisonment on a fourth conviction within twelve months.

Mr. Greenwood might be in favour of the proposals contained in this bill; but he objected to having the statute book encumbered with these pettifogging measures. Law was made for the public protection, nor for lawyers quarrels, and he preferred a consolidating Act for these cases.

Mr. Leary said, if the last speaker were a Minister, he would have enough to do without undertaking all the large functions he contemplated. He believed in these large measures, but time was precious, and as the new provisions were in themselves right in his judgment, he should agree to the second reading.

Mr. Windeyer agreed that a codification of such offences was desirable, but it required time, and the measure now proposed was worthy of support. He should propose amendments in committee.

Mr. Cameron feared the Act would be liable to abuse. Who was to define drunkenness for the purpose of a summons? It might be oath against oath, and the official would be believed before the civilian. If a man cared to get drunk, it did not concern the public, provided he kept it to himself.

Mr. Suttor did not think the power would be likely to be abused, nor was it a pettifogging measure.

Mr. Beyers thought he ought to speak on this matter. The police had too much power to interfere with private rights.

The bill was read a second time without division.

The House went into committee; and after discussion, in which Messrs. Fitzpatrick, Windeyer, Leary, Jacob, Terry, Lynch, Beyers, Driver, Sir John Robertson, and F. Suttor took part, the clauses were amended after several divisions, new clauses were inserted, the bill was reported, and the third reading made an order of the day for Friday next.

Mr. Day moved the second reading of the Birds and Animals Protection Bill. It had come down from the other Chamber, and had been previously discussed, but had failed to pass. It was for the protection of certain imported and native game as defined in schedules annexed, and was to be in force for five years. He described its clauses in detail. The imported game to be protected were pheasant, partridge, quail, grouse, white swan, deer, hare, antelope, and such other as the Governor might at any time proclaim. The native game included twenty-nine animals. The close season was from the 1st October to the end of February. To destroy such game at such a time was cruelty to animals.

Mr. Jacob approved the principle of the measure, but thought the bill very faulty, as he would show in committee. No clause really protected imported game. The list of birds and animals was incomplete, and at the same time included some that might be left out. The hare especially should be struck out, for it was both prolific and destructive to crops. The satin bird was very injurious to grapes, and so were some species of magpie.

Mr. Copeland regarded the bill as very defective. The pelican especially should be struck out of the list.

Mr. F. Suttor felt it was useless to go through the bill clause by clause. The only thing to do was to remodel the whole measure in committee. The hare had been introduced into the Bathurst district to perpetuate the good old English sport of coursing, and now they had become simply a nuisance. He did not think the farmers had suffered much yet, but they would if a five years' protection to hares were granted. A close season could not well be defined because the climate of the colony varied so much in different districts.

Sir John Robertson would also agree to the second reading, and help to amend the bill in committee.

Mr. Charles had seen the most reckless slaughter of birds on the lakes of Illawarra. The list in the schedules needed revising, and so did most of the clauses.

The second reading was agreed to without division, the bill was committed pro forma, and leave to sit again on Friday, the 18th October.

Mr. Hurley moved the second reading of the Beer's Disabilities Bill. He reviewed the evidence on which Dr. Beer was convicted, and cited evidence to rebut it from modern authorities on materia medica. He did not ask pecuniary compensation, but social restitution.

Dr. Bowker was scrupulously jealous for the honour of his profession, because it so intimately concerned the public safety. But he had judged this case upon its facts, and retained his former opinion. A Judge and jury had tried the case, and the House should not lightly reverse that decision. Personally, he had great sympathy for Dr. Beer as a foreigner in this land, but he must not let that bias his judgment of the facts. He quoted from the highest and most recent medical testimony, and reviewed the evidence given on the trial at considerable length.

The second reading was negatived on division by 18 to 15.

Mr. Charles moved that the order of the day be discharged, which was agreed to.

On the motion that the bill be withdrawn,

Mr. Hurley called in question the bona fides of the witnesses at the trial, and complained of the violent opposition he had met with in this motion.

Mr. Gray remembered this case coming before the House previously, and was astonished it had come again. That was not the tribunal for reversing the verdict, but he had no doubt in voting for the withdrawal.

Mr. Driver asked where else was an injured man to seek redress but from Parliament. All Dr. Beer wanted was to clear his name for the honour of his family. He believed in the innocency of the condemned man, and would help to free him from the stigma by his vote whenever the matter came before that House.

Mr. M'Elhone had meant to support the bill, but he read the evidence, and that in itself compelled him to change his opinion. He vindicated Dr. Bowker from the charge of prejudice, and hoped the matter would not come up again.

Dr. Bowker had spoken from an honest sense of duty, for great wrong would have been done the public had the bill passed.

Mr. Windeyer contended that Dr. Beer's persistence for twelve years was some presumption in his favour. What was an innocent man, falsely accused, to do but to repel the charge and seek redress.

Mr. Leary had read the whole case some time ago, and had felt that, but for the insurance part of it, Dr. Beer would never have been convicted. Might not the insurance itself be perfectly innocent? At all events, as evidence in the case, it was improperly admitted. The medical evidence was conflicting, and almost evenly balanced.

Mr. Fitzpatrick regretted that any member should say in that House whether Dr. Beer was guilty or innocent. It was an intricate medical question, and on such a question how could that be a competent court of appeal. His colleague had said one particular point of the evidence had decided the case on its trial; but how could they claim to say that. But he protested against attacks on the personal character of the living and the dead being wantonly dragged into the discussion.

Mr. Terry agreed that this was no proper court of appeal, but he believed an injured man had, again been dealt with unjustly.

Mr. M'Culloch had fully inquired into the case, and was so strongly convinced that he had taken a prominent part in throwing out the bill.

Mr. Day held that as that House could not examine witnesses on oath, they could not adjudicate as a proper law court could. The appeal had been made before and rejected, and the applicant did not come with clean hands.

Mr. W. Davies rose to protest against the unnecessary imputations that had been thrown upon the absent.

The motion was agreed to without division.

The House adjourned at 16 minutes past 10, until 4 o'clock on Tuesday.

If, as is probable, the long promised deed of grant has been issued to the trustees of the Sydney Infirmary, the contest that has been waged on this point has so far been terminated, although Parliament will still have a voice when the vote for expenditure comes under consideration. We cannot, however, but regret that Mr. Fitzpatrick has been coerced into sanctioning the erection of a new hospital on a site which he does not think suitable; and should have been coerced too not by a parliamentary majority, but by outside influence. We have always had a strong sympathy with the view Mr. Fitzpatrick expresses as to the unsuitableness of the site for a large city hospital, and it is to be regretted that as Colonial Secretary he should have felt himself forced to assent to a course, which, as an independent member, he was always able and ready to oppose. That the situation is convenient for the medical men, and that there is a beautiful view from some of its windows is true. But these are not the only or the chief considerations. The area is too limited, the building is too cramped on its two sides, it is on the windward side of the town, and it is not so central for the Sydney that is growing up, as it was for the Sydney of the past generation. We are not able to sympathise with those who see nothing but wonderful forecast in the action of Governor Macquarie, in erecting the range of Government buildings on the east side of Macquarie-street. On the contrary it would have been far better if the Domain had not been poached upon at all, and if the whole frontage had been left clear of buildings. If it was really necessary to take a piece of Government reserve for Government buildings — and in those days any quantity of land could have been resumed for a very small consideration—it would have been far better to have taken the eastern side of Hyde Park, between College-street and the old continuation of Macquarie-street. That would have given a far finer elevation for a row of public buildings, and would have left the Domain undefaced.

When Sir James Martin was Attorney-General he gave the opinion that the promise of a grant of land to the trustees of the Infirmary was an improvident one, and was void in law accordingly. Without disputing the legal correctness of this opinion, we have never been able to lay much stress upon it, because we attach so much importance to good faith in all public transactions that we would rather see the Government err on the side of keeping an improvident promise than show any weakness with regard to its obligations. But, now that forty years have elapsed, it is surely not necessary to keep that promise to the letter if it can be kept in the spirit in a way more to the public interest. It was not the promise of a grant to a private corporation for private interests, but simply to a public trust for public purposes; and, if the experience of forty years has shown that the original intent and purpose of the grant could be better fulfilled than by a strict adherence to the letter of the promise, a rearrangement is justifiable in law and in morals.

It must not be forgotten either that the purpose for which the grant is now given is different from the purpose for which it was originally promised. The intention when the present site was allotted was to establish a pauper infirmary; the present intention is to have a surgical, accident, and general hospital. The change is one that has come about in the course of time, and it is a proper change; but, at the same time, it is a change. Mr. Fitzpatrick is alienating land in fulfilment of an old Government promise; but while the promise stands, the performance on the part of the trustees is to be different. Of late years it has been found that to keep sick paupers in a first-class hospital is a great waste of money; and as the Infirmary has now become a hospital, the sick poor are sedulously kept out, and sent to Liverpool. This is wise administrative economy. Still the very class on whose behalf the land was promised is the very class who are now denied admittance.

Mr. Fitzpatrick was very emphatic in denying that the Infirmary, as it now exists, is a Government institution, or that the Government is responsible for its management. That being so, the question arises whether it is sound policy to alienate to an irresponsible body an exceedingly valuable public property. This question is answered by the statement that the deed of grant is to be hampered by a condition, that if the Government subscribes to the new building, it shall possess a proportionate interest in it, and power of control. But if the Government's share of power is to be proportioned to its share in the contribution, then we must see what the Government contribution has been as a whole. The land alone is worth about £80,000, the two new wings are worth £20,000, and at least half the cost of the new front will have to be provided by Government. Fully four-fifths, therefore, of the proposed building as renovated will have been contributed by Government. Is the Government to have four-fifths of the right of control, or are its representatives to share equally the right of management with a committee, in whose election the Government has no voice and which is chosen by an uncertain and shifting body of subscribers? In any case, is it worth while for the Government to part with its sole administrative control simply for the sake of the small proportionate contribution which comes from the public?

When the subscription for the Prince Alfred fund was commenced, the object of its promoters was to reconstruct the Infirmary front. That object would have been carried out if the people who subscribed the money had approved of permanently fixing the city hospital in the present site. But a very strong opinion was expressed adverse to that proposal, and the ultimate result was, as we know, the application of the money, backed by a Government subscription, to the erection of a fresh hospital on the University reserve. The consequence is that we shall have two hospitals of the same general kind, and in the first instance probably of the same capacity. But so far as ownership and management is concerned both will be partnership affairs between the Government and the public. In each instance the Government gives the land and part of the building fund, and in respect of each there will be somewhat undefined claims on the Government for annual management. If we were to have two separate hospitals, it would, perhaps, have been better that the Government should have been exclusively in possession of one, and that the other should have rested exclusively on the public charity. At any rate the present state of things is not satisfactory, because the Government control and the Government responsibility is not well-defined.

The Supreme Court of Victoria has recently given judgment in a case arising out of the Black Wednesday proceedings of the present Government. In January last, the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, issued an order which purported to remove from office 'all the persons who then held office as County Court Judges. A later order, however, was issued, which purported to cancel this, and to remove from the office of County Court Judge certain persons mentioned by name, amongst whom was included Mr. SKINNER, Judge of the County Court at Warrnambool. After the removal of Mr. SKINNER, Mr. ROGERS was appointed to the office; and the matter upon which judgment has just been given was an application for a writ of quo warranto, calling upon Mr. ROGERS, as Judge of this County Court, to show by what authority he held that position. The question raised was whether the Governor in Council could legally dismiss a County Court Judge without inquiry and without cause shown; for if this could not legally be done the office which Mr. SKINNER had held had not become legally vacant, and Mr. ROGERS could not legally have been appointed to fill it. The Chief Justice held that Mr. SKINNER was improperly removed, or, in other words, that the office was filled when Mr. ROGERS was appointed to it; but Judges BARRY and MOLESWORTH holding the contrary opinion, the application was dismissed by a majority of the Court. The effect of the judgment, however, did not go so far as to affirm the legality of the original order of the Government. Mr. Justice MOLESWORTH, in saying that, in his opinion, "individual County Court Judges are not by law protected against arbitrary dismissal," seems, in fact, to have guarded himself against being understood to declare that all the Judges on the County Courts Bench could be simultaneously swept from their seats at the will of the Government. But so far as the Judges are individually concerned, it is hard to see that they could make much out of this apparent reservation. If their cases were heard singly, each in turn would fall to the ground on the principles of this judgment.

Each of the Judges stated, with a considerable degree of elaboration, the reasons by which he had been guided. Mr. Justice BARRY fell back upon the law of powers relating to real estate, under which it is held that the power of appointment includes a power to revoke. The exercise of the donor's will, he maintained, must always prevail, unless it be controlled by an express restriction imposed by the donor himself. And so it would be with regard to an estate at will in an office. In his view, the County Court Judges held only an estate at will in their offices. This was the position held formerly by the Commissioners of the Courts of Requests in Victoria; and when in the year 16 VIC. these Courts were abolished and the County Courts were created in their place, the nature of the tenure of office of the Judges was the same as that of the Commissioners had been. Power was given to the Lieutenant-Governor to appoint and remove them from office. Later acts had extended the jurisdiction of the Courts, and modified the law relating to them; but, although they were silent as to the Judges' tenure of office, they made reference to their possible removal, and the implication therefore was that their tenure remained as before. Mr. Justice MOLESWORTH also argued from the history of Victorian legislation upon this question, and further maintained that "as a power of appointment cannot reasonably be taken to mean of persons who shall hold for life, however unfit, an Act giving the Governor in Council power of appointment without any express provision for removal, any indication of what shall be unfitness for office or means of inquiry as to it, indicates almost necessarily power of removal without inquiry."

The opinion last mentioned was met by an authority quoted by the Chief Justice to show that where there is "no express enactment as to the tenure of the office, the time during which it shall be held, or the mode of removal from it, these must be ascertained by a consideration of the nature of the office and of the scope and provisions of the Act." The nature of the office in this case being permanent, his Honor argued that it was not in accordance with authority or precedent that it should be held during pleasure; and he contended that the same view was upheld by an examination of the scope and provisions of the Act. The alteration in the phraseology of the more recent statutes raised the question whether Judges appointed under them held under a different tenure. He considered that regarding the later law as a whole, they did. The reference to the possible removal of a Judge was consistent either with removal for cause or removal at pleasure; but the general rule was that when the Legislature intended that offices should be held during pleasure the intention was expressed in explicit terms.

These and other considerations that were advanced to show that the County Court Judges of Victoria, under the Act of 1869, do not hold office at will, were, however, as we have said, overruled by the opinions of the majority of the Court; and, as a consequence, it is to be understood that those officers, in whose hands rests so important a share of the administration of justice, are dependent from day to day for office and pay upon the interest or caprice of the Ministry for the time being. This statement will be startling to some minds; but there is nothing remarkable in it, in view of the fact that the party in power in the Assembly has just proposed to take to itself authority, by the vote of a chance majority, to abolish the Supreme Court.

We may congratulate ourselves upon the circumstance that the District Courts Judges in this colony occupy a better position. It is expressly provided by law that they "shall hold their offices during ability and good behaviour;" and that although they may be removed for inability or misbehaviour, they shall have twenty-one days' notice, and opportunity of being heard before the Governor and Council in their defence. The Governor in Council has power to remove a Judge for the purpose of appointing him to some other district; but that is really nothing more than a power of transfer. So far well. There is, however, a proviso which might be worked in an arbitrary manner. The Government has power to alter the place where any District Court shall be held, or to direct that the holding of any such Court shall be discontinued. And then, "if any District Court shall be abolished, whether by consolidation with any other District Court or otherwise, no Judge or other officer of such District Court shall be entitled to any compensation on account of ceasing to hold his office." Thus, although our Government may not, like that of Victoria, dismiss a Judge without cause, whilst the Court over which he presided is maintained in operation, it may get rid of an obnoxious Judge, against whom nothing could be advanced in support of his dismissal, by arbitrarily abolishing his Court, or including it within another Judge's district.

It is unsound policy that the holders of judicial offices should be subject to the arbitrary power, or dependent upon the caprice of the Ministry of the day. Everything that can be urged in favour of maintaining the independence of the Supreme Court Judges may be applied—though in varying degrees—to the case of judicial officers of subordinate rank. The position of our District Courts Judges, though better than that of the Judges of County Courts in Victoria, is not so good as it should be, in the interests of the public; and the work of reform ought not to stop with them. We need a better system for the appointment of the unpaid magistracy, whose nomination or recommendation should not rest, as it now does to a large extent, with the political supporters of the Government. And the office of stipendiary magistrate should be made one of greater independence, security, and honour. As it is, it would be scarcely safe with us for a Government to deal with police magistrates as the County Courts Judges were treated last January in Victoria. But, whether superannuation should or should not be reintroduced for the Civil service generally, some sufficient retiring allowance or pension should be provided for District Courts Judges and Police Magistrates.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE cable betwen Port Darwin and Banjoewangi has not yet been repaired. On the Western Australian line communication is also still interrupted, and we have consequently not received any further portion of the telegraphic message from our Albany correspondent, of news brought by the R. M. S. Tanjore, in continuation of the telegrams we published yesterday.

A DISCUSSION of some length, which appeared to be unusually interesting to hon. members, took place last night in the Legislative Assembly on Mr. Jacob's bill for amending the Drunkards Punishment Act. The purpose of the bill was to enable a justice to deal with the offence by summons on information of any person cognizant of the offence. The description of the offence was "drunk, or drunk and disorderly," in any public place. The Colonial Secretary moved the omission of the words "drunk or," on the ground that a man's personal habits, however disgusting in themselves, were no offence unless they trenched upon the rights of others, or the public decency. The discussion became anecdotal, not to say autobiographical, and some of the incidents cited "to point the moral," were amusing if not reformatory. Several divisions were taken, about which honorable members did not seem quite clear, one distinguished Son of Temperance rushing in just as the bar was falling, to be claimed by both sides, much to his perplexity. The bill finally issued from committee with some material amendments, and awaits its third reading next Friday.

THE deputation which applied to Mr. Fitzpatrick yesterday, for a grant of money in aid of the proposed Industrial Institution for the Blind, brings prominently before the public the philanthropic aims of the promoters of that institution; and the Colonial Secretary, without refusing to recommend Parliament to grant the aid requested, clearly and sharply defined one of the fundamental principles upon which the distribution of Government bounty has been hitherto based. Valuable results may follow from the forcible manner in which Sir Alfred Stephen incidentally characterised a gross species of dishonesty and imposture which has become prevalent in this community—the casting off of parental obligations—and which is partly attributable to well meant but ill-judged charity.

To call a spade a spade has been reckoned a good and even a meritorious action, but the blunt outspokenness which has been in fashion is in some danger of having to give place to more polite and circuitous phraseology. The deputation—consisting of the Vice-president (Mr. Arthur Renwick, M.D.), the Very Rev. Dean Sheridan, the treasurer (Mr. J. R. Street), and the secretary (Mr. Russell)—from the Sydney Infirmary, which had an interview with the Colonial Secretary yesterday, showed that the directors of that institution are not only solicitous to cure or mitigate the physical maladies of the inmates, but that they are tenderly careful not to wound the moral or mental susceptibilities of those who may apply to them for relief. It appears that some Government official has lately devised a form of "recommendation for the admission of a pauper into the Sydney Infirmary," which has given umbrage to the indigent poor, inasmuch as it runs thus: "I" (the secretary of the Infirmary) "hereby certify that having made inquiry into the circumstances of" (say John Smith, a tinsmith) "I have satisfied myself that he is absolutely a pauper, and without friends who may fairly be expected to pay for treatment," &c. Mr. Fitzpatrick did not insist that indigent or Government patients should be thus described in the applications sent to him for their admission, and consented to revert to an older certificate in which the words "absolutely a pauper" do not occur. It transpired from some remarks of the secretary, that persons who had been admitted as "absolute paupers" had been found to have sufficient money upon them to pay for their treatment, and that they had been required to pay accordingly. Mr. Fitzpatrick adverted to the anomalous position to which by the prescribed routine he was placed. It was a very painful thing for him to see the sick poor, waiting about the entrance to his office, applying for papers of admission to the Infirmary. He could have no knowledge either of their character or their necessities, and any action he took was perfunctory. But after he, as Colonial Secretary, gave the orders, it sometimes happened that the applicants were not admitted. Inquiry by the Infirmary authorities showed that the applicants were not persons deserving to be admitted, and they no doubt rightly refused to admit them, but that made the position of the Colonial Secretary rather peculiar. The Infirmary, like most other public charities, would soon be almost wholly supported by public funds, and he did not see why the Government should be required to pay specifically for patients admitted on his recommendation. He had full confidence in the Infirmary management, and thought it would be quite enough if the directors would cause him to be supplied with a periodical return of the number of Government patients admitted. As soon as he could get leisure he would try and alter the present arrangement.

AMONGST the numerous deputations that waited upon Ministers yesterday, was one from the Municipal Council of Balmain, to the Minister for Works, requesting the formation and blue metalling of Weston-street, Balmain. Mr. Sutherland said this part of the road had never been under the charge of the Roads Department, nor had the Government been asked before now to take it under their charge, but as soon as they could spare the money something would be done to the road in the way requested. A deputation consisting of Sir Henry Parkes, M.L.A.; Mr. Brierley, Mr. Hunter, and Mr. Croker, the mayor of Five Dock, also waited upon the Minister for Works, yesterday, in reference to the road from the Parramatta Road to the present punt. It was pointed out that the road was being kept in part repair by the Corporation of Five Dock, and that it was desired that the Government should take charge of it or place a sum of money on the Estimates to keep it in order. It was also stated to be impossible for the Corporation to maintain the road in proper condition with the small amount at their disposal; in fact, that it would take the whole of their revenue to properly make it. Mr. Sutherland, in reply, said the Commissioner for Roads had recently inspected the place, and reported that it was a principal road, and ought to be kept in repair by the local Corporation. It was also stated that as soon as the contemplated bridges were erected the road would be of very little service. He, therefore, must inform the deputation that he would further consult the Commissioner for Roads on the matter, with the view of ascertaining whether he could possibly do anything to further the objects of the deputation. He was aware that the funds at the disposal of the Corporation were insufficient to keep the road in proper repair, but he could not really make them any definite promise of assistance at the present time.

A MEETING of the International Exhibition committee was held yesterday when the draft of a telegram to be sent to England was approved of. Committees to carry out the various departments of the exhibition were appointed, and the city and suburbs were divided into districts and members appointed to collect subscriptions in each.

A WELL-ATTENDED meeting of those interested in yachting and rowing was held in the Chamber of Commerce, yesterday afternoon, in response to an advertisement, signed by C. Smith, and published in the "Herald." Captain C. Smith occupied the chair, and explained that the advertisement was to the effect that at the request of several influential supporters of the Anniversary Regatta he invited office-bearers for the current year and other subscribers to the funds to meet, it being intended to form a National Regatta Association of contributors of a guinea yearly and from their number to elect annually an executive committee, who should have the management of the regatta. He understood and regretted that there was some dissension at the previous meeting, and he hoped that whatever was done on the present occasion would be accomplished with unanimity, and that they would all pull together for a national regatta. He would suggest that for carrying that out the services of a number of members of each yacht club and some of the general committee should be enlisted. He then read a letter from Mr. W. O. Gilchrist, stating that that gentleman would not be able to act as president of the regatta for 1879, as he purposed on that occasion being afloat in his yacht. At this point a member of the late committee asked if it were intended that non-subscribers should take part in the proceedings; but the chairman ruled that it was a public meeting, and those might be present who (though not subscribers) might be prepared to assist in carrying out the regatta of 1879. Mr. James Watson, M.L.A., on being called upon, explained how at a previous meeting certain gentlemen were elected to certain offices. After some discussion on former proceedings, Mr. S. A. Joseph, who said he was present at the invitation of the chairman, moved a resolution affirming the desirableness of forming a National Regatta Association, the members of which were to have their voting powers regulated by their subscriptions. The resolution was seconded and discussed. Mr. J. Want took exception to it. He said it was the duty of everyone present to do their utmost for the regatta, and after officers of experience had won the confidence of a previous and very large meeting, it would be bad grace and an insult to those gentlemen to say they were not fit to carry out the contemplated proceedings. He would suggest that the committee elected stand elected. That would lead to more subscriptions than a Regatta Association. Mr. Want's views were adversely criticised, but they seemed to Mr. Joseph to be so generally supported that that gentleman expressed himself satisfied that the feeling of the meeting had been tested, and said he would withdraw his resolution. He had no intention of doing away with what had been done previously. His desire was to get unanimity in what ought to be a national undertaking. Perhaps old fogies had no right to attempt to influence the proceedings, seeing that the young folks knew well enough how to conduct their own affairs. The resolution was then withdrawn, and the proceedings were terminated.

Although the proposition submitted by Mr. Mackinnon, of Melbourne, to form an eleven from New South Wales and Victoria to meet the Australian team on their return, has been ventilated in cricketing circles here, it is not received with much favour. The statement recently circulated that a meeting of leading cricketers in the metropolis had been held in reference to the matter proves to be incorrect, and it is unlikely that any combined action will be taken. Several well known players whose names have been mentioned in connection with the proposal are, we understand, averse to applying for the requisite leave of absence in view of the contests arranged to take place here about Christmas, and the scheme will therefore probably fall to the ground. It may be said in justice to Mr. Evans, to whom Mr. Mackinnon addressed the communication published a day or two ago, that be entertained the suggestion simply from a wish to promote an interesting match, and with no desire to depreciate the remarkable success achieved by the Australian team, who were anxious to secure his services before they started for the mother country.

THE council of the Health Society of New South Wales held their monthly meeting on Wednesday. After the usual formal business, the hon. secretary reported that the deputation to the Premier, with the petition praying legislation for public health, had been favourably received by the Minister, who informed them that legislation would be attempted. The hon. secretary reported the grant, by the directors of the Infirmary and of the Benevolent Asylum, of leave to M. Bonnefin to fix his closet invention in their buildings. There had been communication with the Premier on the subject of the reported arrival in Sydney of 26 unfortunate women refused license under the Queensland law. A letter had been received from the Department of Justice and Public Instruction, of 19th September, promising to keep in view the secretary's suggestions for teaching life lessons in the State schools. He reported his lecture on Sewer Gas as being in the press, and stated that 500 copies are to be printed. He brought up a draft of the second annual report of the society, for the year ending 29th August, which was adopted. Payment of small accounts, amounting to £5 4s. 9d., was ordered; and it was resolved that the annual meeting be held in the Hall of Commerce on an early day, to be arranged by the hon. secretary.

Should the Deputy Master be so satisfied, the name of the candidate will be submitted to his Excellency the Governor, for nomination to the Lords Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, for permanent appointment.

MR. HENRY VARLEY'S evangelistic services at the Masonic Hall continue to attract large audiences. Last night he discoursed on the miracle of healing the woman diseased with an issue of blood, and deduced therefrom evidence of Christ's sympathy with human suffering, and his power to provide an immediate remedy; and argued therefrom his readiness to heal the mental and spiritual maladies of his creatures.

A VERY extraordinary ceremony took place at the offices of the Australasian Steam Navigation Company yesterday afternoon. Just after the deliberations of the Board of Directors had terminated, Captain Trouton, on behalf of the Company, presented a gold watch and a cheque for £250 to Mr. Thomas Macredie, the superintendent of their joinery works. The presentation was intended as an acknowledgment on the part of the Company of Mr. Macredie's services on their behalf during the last twenty-five years, and particularly in connection with the formation of their new wharfs at Circular Quay. The watch was suitably inscribed to mark the event, and when Captain Trouton made the presentation, he accompanied the gifts with a few complimentary and encouraging remarks. Several of the directors also congratulated Mr. Macredie on the manner in which he had effected the Company's work in New South Wales, and in those ports in Queensland to which their steamers proceeded, and praised him particularly for his successful efforts at their new premises at Campbell's Wharf. Mr. Macredie acknowledged the presentation in very agreeable terms, and said he hoped his services to the Company would be as successful in the future as it appeared to them they had been in the past.

THE "Australian Cricketers' Tour through Australia, New Zealand, and Great Britain," is the title of a book, or rather pamphlet, of some 100 pages, and printed by Messrs. Jarrett and Co. It contains a full account of the matches, dinners, excursions, &c., in which our representatives of the willow were engaged from the time the team was organized, to their thirty-seventh, and last match in the old country, not omitting the interesting sketch from London "Punch" of the supposed interview between the editor of the Charivari and the "Eleven." The first chapter gives the ages and birth-places, and other particulars of the eleven. The descriptions of the matches are for the most part compiled from Press notices; the information, however, is full, and on that account is valuable as a record of what our cricketers have achieved. The work is well printed, and neatly got up.

THE weather in the metropolis during the week has been fine. Yesterday morning, the heat was great and the atmosphere close; but in the afternoon, a southerly burster set in, and the city was almost enveloped in dust. It was hoped that rain would have followed; but towards evening the wind moderated, got more into the west, and the night was remarkably fine, clear, and cool.

THE City Coroner held an inquest yesterday, at the Bellevue Hotel, Redfern, on the body of Thomas James Charles Taylor, aged one year and eight months, who was suffocated in a closet at his parent's residence, 189, Botany-street, on Thursday. Mrs. Taylor, the mother of the deceased, deposed that she had missed him from the house about midday, and on making search for him, together with a neighbour, Mrs. Collins, he was found in the pit of a closet quite dead. Dr. Markey deposed to the cause of death being suffocation. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

WE have been shown by Messrs. D. and W. Robertson, of Change Alley, Circular Quay, some rather remarkable samples of steel, just received per Whampoa, manufactured by Messrs. John Brown and Co., at their Atlas Works, Sheffield. This steel, it seems, is manufactured by the Bessemer process, unusual care being taken, and exhaustive tests being applied at every stage of the work: the result is that the material, while but little higher in price than ordinary iron, has a tensile strength, only one-fourth greater, and is far superior in ductility and tenacity. It is claimed for this steel that it is eminently fitted for boilers for steam-engines, inasmuch as the peculiar process of manufacture ensures a uniformity in the plates, the want of which has hitherto caused a prejudice against the use of steel for this purpose, and the manufacturers guarantee that every separate plate is tested before it is sent away from the works. To any person interested in the manufacture of iron and steel an inspection of these samples will be very interesting, and a single glance will show the high quality of the material. For instance, there is a strip of three-eight inch steel plate, which sustained a tensile strain of 27.35 tons to the square inch before it parted, with an elongation of two inches and one-eighth in a length of eight inches, and a reduction of area equal to 56 per cent. Another similar strip of metal has been bent cold five times upon itself, as flat as a piece of paper, but shows no sign of being cracked or broken. Other pieces of plate have been pressed cold into such forms as a hollow hemisphere, ten inches in diameter, and shapes similar to those of hats. One piece of three-eight inch plate has stood the astonishing test of having some 60 holes punched in it, five-eight inch in diameter, and as close together as they could well be, but without causing the smallest sign of fracture in the steel. There is a bar of this steel, half-inch square, which has stood the strain of being twisted six times complete in its length. There are also samples of steel angles bent in all sorts of ways, and an angle nine inches by four inches by half-inch, rolled in forty feet lengths for coaches for the Midland Railway. In addition to these there are many other interesting samples of the perfection this branch of manufacture has attained.

THERE was a good attendance at the Temperance Hall last night on the occasion of Mrs. E. H. Britten's lecture on "The lost art of magic rediscovered." The lecture, which lasted nearly two hours, was well received, the speaker being several times interrupted during the discourse by applause from the audience. The lecturer upheld that the art of magic was but the art of understanding the secret laws and mysteries of nature, and applying the knowledge to human affairs, and that magic itself was just as prevalent in the present time as in the days of Egyptian civilisation, the only difference being that magic was practised knowingly and carefully in olden times, while at the present time it is used involuntarily and ignorantly. She contended that the effects of music on the mind, the emotions of love, joy, sorrow, &c., and magnetism are all true magic, and the ancients only systematized these and other influences and reduced them to an art, while in the nineteenth century they are regarded as natural phenomena, and not cultivated as magic. She mentioned the prophets among the ancients and the fakirs of our own time as true magicians, and affirmed that the powers they possessed were induced by the emaciation of their bodies, which gave greater freedom and power to their spirits, enabling them to understand more perfectly the secrets of nature. The lecturer then went on to speak of modern Spiritualism, which she stated to be the communion of the spirit of the medium with the spirit of the universe and the spirits of deceased friends and relatives; and she expressed an opinion that Spiritualism would be the religion of the future, and the only one received by civilisation. After the lecture was over, Mrs. Britten answered the questions relative to the discourse which were put to her by the audience, and on retiring stated that she intended giving another lecture, on Tuesday next, on the subject of "Sorcery and Witchcraft."

AN excursion up the Hawkesbury was announced two or three weeks ago, but was unavoidably postponed. It is now announced to take place on Wednesday next. Those who have not yet seen the magnificent scenery of the Hawkesbury will now have an opportunity of witnessing it.

IT will be seen by reference to our telegraphic column that a movement has been set on foot at Dubbo to raise a relief fund for the widow and eight children of Sergeant Wallings, whose melancholy death has aroused great sympathy in the district and admiration throughout the colony generally at the bravery of the deceased sergeant, who was shot in the performance of his duty.

THE annual meeting of the Balmain Congregational Mutual Improvement Society was held at the Congregational Schoolroom, Curtis Road, on Thursday evening, the chair being taken by the president (the Rev. A. G. Fry). The room was crowded to excess, there were about 400 present, and numbers were unable to gain admission. The meeting was opened by the chairman reading an address giving a short sketch of the proceedings of the society since its formation. Songs, recitations, readings, and dialogues formed part of a very interesting programme, and were ably and agreeably rendered by the young men. A collection was taken in aid of the funds of the society, which was liberally responded to by the audience.

AT the Metropolitan District Court, yesterday morning, Mr. District Court Judge Wilkinson dealt with a number of undefended cases.

THE following is the list of shipping for the past week. The arrivals from foreign ports were:—City of Sydney (s.), from San Francisco; Cimba, ship, from London; William Manson, barque, from Foochow; Adventurer, from a whaling cruse. The departures for foreign ports were:—Havelock, barque, for Callao; Wentworth (s.), for Fiji; Hallowe'en, ship, for Shanghai. The intercolonial passenger traffic was as follows:—Arrivals from Melbourne, 280; departures to Melbourne, 186; arrivals from Brisbane, 180; departures for Brisbane, 115.

THE quarterly meeting of the Master Butchers' Association was held at the rooms of the association, Temperance Hall, on Tuesday evening. Alderman Playfair, J.P., occupied the chair. The balance-sheet—which showed a very satisfactory state of financial progress, the amount to the credit of the association being £81 10s. 10d., all the liabilities having been discharged—was read and adopted. A discussion ensued upon trade affairs and matters generally affecting the progress and furtherance of the objects of the association. The meeting, which was largely attended, was brought to a close by the customary vote of thanks to the chairman.

THE Mona Gallery will be open to the inspection of visitors after 2 o'clock to-day.

A TELEGRAM from Young states that the Rev. F. R. Seaborn was, on Thursday night, presented with a very handsome illuminated address and purse of seventy sovereigns. Mr. James Gordon occupied the chair. The rev. gentleman has been eight years in this district, and now leaves for Melbourne. Addresses have also been presented from Wombat and Bulla Creek. A purse is to be presented to Mrs. Seaborn.

TELEGRAPHIC offices have been opened at Tinonee (Manning River) Kempsey, and Frederickton (Macleay River). The first telegrams sent from these townships were forwarded to Mr. R. B. Smith, M.P., congratulating and thanking him for his services in obtaining the establishment of these offices.

A TELEGRAM from West Kempsey states that a successful public meeting in connection with the British and Foreign Bible Society was held there on Thursday evening, in the Wesleyan Church. The Rev. Mr. Patterson presided. The Rev. Mr. Piddington gave an excellent address. The Rev. Mr. Gilby, Mr. Gray, and several laymen addressed the meeting, which resulted in about £10 being raised.

GOLD PROSPECTING IN NEW GUINEA.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BRISBANE, FRIDAY.

The Prospect has arrived from Port Moresby with 8 passengers, including some of the colonial party, who report that they had prospected the Manamana River and got nothing but colour. All prospecting had been given up, and the remainder of the party were at Port Moresby waiting for a vessel to take away the horses. Mr. Ingham had not arrived, but was on the coast about 200 miles west, making his way to Port Moresby.

The passengers by the Prospect are John and Alexander M'Call, J. Dillon, and Brown of the Colonist party, and four others. Early in August, six of the Colonist and ten of the Emily party left Lalakoi, and went north-east with the intention of returning to Manamana River, which flows into Redscar Bay. After great labour and cutting through forty miles of scrub, and getting horses ten miles, they reached the river at seventy miles, and prospected up and down for many miles without getting a colour. They saw very few natives, and in the villages only a few huts. Peter Brown was drowned on the 24th August, while crossing the river. His body was found and buried on the 26th. Two other parties went up the Goldie, and about fifteen miles above the original top camp they found a large branch to the left towards Owen Stanley range. They followed it fifteen miles with fair indications of gold, and getting better, but they had to return short of rations. Not a day passed without more or less rain, and the rivers were still running strong, showing plainly that it never ceases raining at the source. Jones and the remainder of the Colonist party are now waiting to return with the horses, and are satisfied that payable gold does not exist, and even if it were found in such mountainous and scrubby country it could not be worked unless at an enormous sacrifice of life. A few of the emigrants and other parties intend to try again on the left branch of the Goldie.

GOLD on the OLD EUREKA REEF.

The Minister for Mines has forwarded to us the following copy of an official letter just received by him:—

"Mining Registrar's Office, Hargraves,
"September 30, 1878.

"Sir,—I have the honour to report for your information that two miners of this town struck a gold-bearing leader on the Old Eureka Reef one day last week. I have seen some splendid specimens from it. These two men, Bond and Corioless, have traced the leader from the surface. They are down about fifteen feet, and have about three tons of stone to grass, from which they have picked a dish of the best specimens, and crushed them, and obtained 14 ounces of gold from them. The leader is 8 inches thick, the quartz having a burnt appearance. If the prospects continue as good for a day or two more as they have been for the past three days, those men will hoist the red flag.

"I may also state that a puddler here picked up a very fine specimen nugget, weighing 75 ounces, and estimated to contain 55 ounces of gold, on Saturday last, on the slope of the ridge to the west of the old company's reef, and immediately under a large bluff or blow of quartz.

"I have the honour to be, Sir, your most obedient servant,
"(Signed) THOS. O'BRIEN, Mining Registrar.
"The Under-Secretary for Mines, Sydney."

AMUSEMENTS.

The Theatre Royal, last night, was exceptionally well filled on the occasion of a farewell benefit given to Mr. J. L. Hall. The first piece was "Old Sailors," in which Mr. Hall gave a most enjoyable representation of an "A.B." The comedy has never been produced in Sydney before, but it would bear many repetitions. The plot is full of incident and abounds with pleasing dialogue and romantic incidents, and as put on the stage last night it was a production that would do credit to the boards of any theatre. The burlesque of "Aladdin," in which Mr. Hall appeared as the Widow Twankey, completed the programme. This evening, Mr. Theo. Hamilton is announced to appear in the tragedy of "Macbeth."

At the Victoria Theatre, yesterday evening, Mr. W. G. Carey took a benefit, but it could not be called a substantial one, for the house was only sparsely attended. "Our Native Land," which has been "run" during the week, was the piece de resistance, and it was tolerably well represented. The bill of fare was completed with dancing, a recitation, and a petite comedy entitled "A Husband in Clover." This evening "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is announced for presentation.

Kelly and Leon's Minstrels continue to draw excellent houses at the Queen's Theatre, and last night was no exception to the rule. A remarkably amusing programme was given, and met with the approval of the audience. To-night it is intimated in the advertisement there will be an entire change.

Apart from the natural beauties and the historical interest surrounding Botany Bay, efforts are being made to render the place more attractive than ever to pleasure-seekers by the formation of flower gardens and recreation grounds in its vicinity. In the last-named of these the usual materials have been placed for the enjoyment of picnic parties. Prominent amongst them is a pavilion erected by Mr. Frank Smith, of the Sir Joseph Banks Hotel. It is, perhaps, the largest structure of the kind in the colony, and certainly one of the most complete. It contains accommodation for an almost unlimited number of dancers, and also for roller skating. The proprietor intends celebrating its completion to-day, and has taken steps for making the ceremony as attractive and enjoyable as possible. Omnibuses will run to the place every ten minutes from Wynyard-square, and persons proceeding by them can on reaching their destination engage in dancing, under the direction of Mr. William King, or enjoy skating, under the direction of Mr. Alfred Wyburd, who, it will be remembered, gave several exhibitions of his skill in the art at the Temperance Hall recently. An efficient band will be provided.

A complimentary entertainment to Miss Amy Sherwin, prior to her departure from the colony on Thursday, by the Pacific mail steamer, has been arranged. It is to take place under the patronage of the Hon. Lady Robinson, on Tuesday evening, at the Guild Hall.

To-night the Georgia Minstrels (the Uncle Tom's Cabin combination), commence a short season at the Victoria Theatre. A dramatised version of Mrs. H. B. Stowe's well-known novel, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," will be produced. The scenery for the piece has been painted by Mr. Clint, and the caste, as advertised, will be a powerful one.

A BISHOP ON CREMATION.—The Bishop of St. Albans, in consecrating an addition to the churchyard of Dovercourt, took occasion to condemn strongly the system of cremation. He believed that the religious feelings of the people of this country would be terribly shocked by the adoption of any other mode of disposing of the dead than that to which they had been so long accustomed. In this restless age nothing was considered sacred, but he trusted that the new-fangled doctrine of cremation would never be approved by a religious people.

DEPUTATIONS.

PROPOSED SUBURBAN RAILWAYS.

A deputation, consisting of Mr. J. Macpherson (Mayor of Waverley), Messrs. J. Green, T. B. Walker, W. Cary, C. K. Moore, W. Druitt, R. Sands, R. Rome, the Hon. W. Grahame, and others, waited upon the Minister for Works, yesterday, for the purpose of laying before that gentleman resolutions passed at a public meeting of residents of Waverley and its district, and held in the Waverley Council-chamber on Monday, the 23rd of September.

The deputation was introduced by Sir Henry Parkes.

Mr. MACPHERSON said it would be scarcely necessary to go into argument in support of the object the deputation had in view, because he was sure the Minister was in possession of all the facts concerning it. Their principal object was to urge upon the Government the importance of the suburban railways and to ask the Government to bring the subject of them before Parliament as early as possible, and at any rate during the present session. He supposed there were sixty thousand or seventy thousand persons interested in the proposed scheme, and he was quite certain they would support the Government in every legitimate and constitutional way in carrying it into effect. He concluded by reading the resolutions passed at the meeting referred to.

Mr. DRUITT pointed out that the residents of Waverley and Bondi had worse means of traffic than other places, and had been long suffering and without prospect of a change. They would, therefore, urge the present matter upon the Government with the greatest respect. The population of those places, he said, was very numerous, and if there was proper access to them it would very quickly be three times what it was at present. Waverley and Bondi were known to be the most healthy localities about the city, and there was no doubt that Bondi especially would be regarded as a place of health and recreation. He would not occupy time at present by speaking further of the claims of those places for consideration in the matter of suburban railways, because it was so transparent that the matter was of the utmost importance to every one, not only to the present population, but to those who might in the future wish to secure the benefits of sea air and a fine climate.

Mr. WALKER said the land required for the line should, for economy's sake, be purchased as early as possible, because in a very short time it would have acquired a value far in advance of its present worth.

Mr. CARY said that, as the population of Sydney represented about a third of that of the entire colony, the scheme of suburban railways should be carried into effect. Previous Governments provided for the interest of people in the interior in the matter of railways, and the present and future Governments had a right to provide for the interests of the citizens and people in the suburbs in the same direction. He believed the suburban railway scheme would be a good spec. for the Government, and consequently for the people. The present was a most advantageous time for engaging in it, and if the Government entered upon it he was sure they would have the support of the people.

Mr. DRUITT said that numbers of people proceeding between Bondi and Sydney spent twelve hours a week in omnibuses. That was a monstrous waste of time.

Alderman GREEN said the matter was so transparent and feasible that it needed but few argumentative supports. If a few people scattered over miles of country in the interior were given railways, surely the packed population of the city and suburbs deserved the same consideration. The greater the number of people there was, the greater was the necessity for proceeding with railways. In the making of railways the convenience of the people was everything. They had gone a long way into the interior with railways, and no distance worth speaking of into the suburbs. Apart from that, the road to Waverley was one of the worst about the metropolis, and persons travelling by it were heavily taxed. The ground required for the railway would be inexpensive, and the fact that the Government had a great deal of land in the locality which, at present, could not well be got at necessitated the construction of a railway in its vicinity. He was anxious that their project should succeed, and he might add that the meeting at Waverley was unanimously in favour of it.

Sir HENRY PARKES asked Mr. Sutherland if he could state whether the reference in the Governor's speech applied to a railway system for the whole of the suburbs.

Mr. SUTHERLAND replied that he could not say which parts of the system would be carried into effect, because he had not got estimates for them. It would depend upon the profitableness of each of them as to which would be first carried into effect. The profitableness could only be calculated from the estimates of the department, and these would be based upon the probable number of passengers and the cost of providing them with accommodation. He might say that surveys were pretty well completed for a system of railways for all the suburbs on the south side of the harbour, but the Government was not bound to take the whole of them before Parliament during the present session. The portions taken before Parliament would be those the Government, after duly considering the estimates of its engineers, deemed were the best investments for the country.

Sir HENRY PARKES said he thought Mr. Farnell carried a motion in Parliament last session in favour of a complete or circular system of railways. He thought possibly there was some intention of carrying out the principles of that resolution, and then it occurred to him that Waverley would be comprehended in the scheme.

Mr. SUTHERLAND said Waverley was in the scheme; but, as he said before, it would depend upon the prospective profitableness of each portion as to which would be brought forward during the present session.

Mr. MACPHERSON pointed out that in two years the land required for the line would be eight times its present value.

Mr. SUTHERLAND, in reply to this, stated that there were gentlemen who had watched not only surveyors in the suburbs, but those at work in the country, and questions had been repeatedly asked in Parliament as to where railways were likely to be constructed, so that land might be taken up for which the Government would have to pay a very high price when requiring it for railways. (Hear, hear.)

Sir HENRY PARKES asked if any portion of the scheme submitted to Parliament would form one of other portions to follow.

Mr. SUTHERLAND said it would. The surveys were pretty nearly completed on the south side of the harbour. On the north side, which was included in Mr. Farnell's resolution, they were not yet so far advanced. The plans had been ready some time, but the estimates he had not yet got. The Engineer-in-Chief and his staff, however, had been busily engaged on them for a long time, and as soon as he could get them the whole matter would be submitted to Parliament.

Sir HENRY PARKES said he thought that if the Government had in view the carrying out of the whole system the sooner the land required for the purpose was acquired the better.

Mr. SUTHERLAND said that matter had not been lost sight of, but they would not be in a position to take the land for particular railways unless Parliament sanctioned the construction of those railways. The Railway Act only gave the Government power to acquire land when Parliament sanctioned the construction of particular railways.

Sir HENRY PARKES said he was precisely of that opinion. The sooner however, the will of Parliament was sought in the matter, the sooner it would be obtained. Arbitration would be governed by the ruling price, and the price might be considerably raised in the course of a couple of years.

Mr. SUTHERLAND said that as soon as the estimates were obtained the Government would take action.

Sir HENRY PARKES presumed that the deputation might infer that their object would be amongst the first proposals.

Mr. SUTHERLAND said he believed it would.

Mr. MACPHERSON desired to know whether the suburban lines would be connected with the line to Circular Quay.

Mr. SUTHERLAND replied that the lines would naturally be connected with each other, but the construction of one could proceed independently of that of the other.

The deputation then tendered their thanks to Mr. Sutherland for his courtesy, and retired.

THE LINE TO SINGLETON.

Yesterday a deputation, consisting of Dr. Bowker, M.P., Mr. Hungerford, M.P., Mr. Jacob, M.P., Mr. Wallace (Mayor of Newcastle), Captain Hacking, Aldermen Brooks and Creer, and Messrs. A. Brown, Bingle, Portus, and G. Tully, waited on the Hon. the Minister for Works to protest against the movement to connect Singleton with Sydney by rail.

Dr. BOWKER introduced the deputation, and said he did so with great pleasure on two accounts. The first was the duty he owed his constituents, and the second was that he believed the making of three branch lines was really dangerous to the country, his opinion being trunk lines should be made first.

Mr. WALLACE said that as chairman of the public meeting he had much pleasure in handing the Minister the memorial. The people of Newcastle, he said, had treated this thing not so much as a local matter as a public question. They considered that a line connecting the Great Northern railway with Sydney should not be made until the main lines had all been constructed and connected with the trunk lines of the adjacent colonies. At present it was considered that such a line would be an injudicious expenditure of public money, and was not a matter for present consideration, and that it would not be a fair and just expenditure to the whole colony. Of course, when the time came when such a line should be constructed, it would be for the Government to consider the best point of connection.

The memorial was as follows:—

"The memorial of the inhabitants of the city and port of Newcastle in public meeting assembled humbly sheweth that your memorialists view with considerable surprise an attempt now being made by certain individuals in several localities acting in concert with others in the metropolis for the purpose of promoting a scheme having for its object the formation of a branch line of railway to tap the Great Northern at or somewhere near Singleton and from thence to Sydney. Adverting to certain allegations contained in a petition relating to this matter, recently laid before the Minister for Works by a deputation from Singleton, and to several statements made in support of that petition, your memorialists can have no hesitation in characterising some of those allegations as palpable exaggerations and others as wholly untrue, and therefore, calculated to mislead the Government, as well as create an unfounded prejudice in the public mind, as to the sufficiency and safety of existing facilities between the northern district and the metropolis. In the first place the general proposition laid down in paragraph 3 of the petition, is not borne out by fact, that elsewhere railways have been constructed, 'parallel to roads and rivers and to the sea,' as a rule, but on the contrary, it is notorious that for heavy goods traffic, the inland rivers and canals of the United Kingdom have not been superseded by railways, but still continue as prosperous as before their introduction, and performing a service to trade and commerce, for which railways have not hitherto been deemed to be more suitable; and it is equally certain that railway speculators in England or elsewhere have not been so rash as to construct coast lines to compete with sea-borne goods in any instance that has come within the knowledge of your memorialists. But the most serious, disingenuous, and untruthful allegation is that contained in paragraph No. 7 of the said petition set forth with an amount of apparent circumstantiality and deliberation such as seldom finds place in a public document—namely, that 'since the extension of the railway from Newcastle, a distance of seventy-five miles northwards, several hundreds of lives have been lost on the voyage between Newcastle and Sydney, while not one life has been lost by rail in the same distance, and during the same period, &c.' That the above invidious allegation is untrue, in both aspects of the case, your memorialists are prepared to substantiate by irrefutable testimony, to the effect that while loss of life has taken place on the Great Northern Railway, 'within the same distance, and during the same period,' that not a single life has been lost during a period of forty years, attributable to wreck or tempestuous weather, on the coast route of any of the steamers of the various companies, who, during that time have carried on the goods and passenger traffic between the port of Newcastle and Sydney. The remarkable immunity from serious disaster, which has hitherto attended this traffic during so long a period, whilst affording cause for universal gratulation, should likewise have saved your memorialists the painful necessity of having to refute in so public a manner, so deliberate a slander concerning the port and its traffic, put forth by those who are our immediate neighbours, and who, therefore, ought to have been better informed on the subject; and in any case of the kind should have manifested a greater regard for truth than has been displayed by them in this instance. Among other puerile and inconsequential exceptions taken by the said petitioners to the present route from the north to the metropolis, is the length of time to be occupied by the journey, and the advantages which would accrue by the scheme of railway communication proposed. Even in this respect, and by their own showing, this question becomes one of very equivocal import, and, as your memorialists believe, will in practical effect be wholly neutralised, if the distance to be traversed by rail from Singleton to Sydney be correctly estimated. In the 8th paragraph of the said petition is laid down that whilst 'the distance between Newcastle to Sydney, by sea, occupies at the very least five hours, by rail the distance would be accomplished in about three hours.' Now, the distance by rail, having been variously estimated at from 125 to 200 miles, it becomes obvious that the minimum distance here given through such a country is not likely to be accomplished by any but express trains in less than five hours. Wherein then, it may be asked, is the gain in point of time? Your memorialists, however, whilst duly appreciating the commercial value of time, can hardly conceive that the exigencies of the trade involved are of such magnitude and importance as to justify those exorbitant demands made in its behalf, for even if two hours on the journey could be saved, the outlay of two millions of public money for the accomplishment of that purpose, would be too dear to pay for the accommodation of portion of the north, together with all the claims set up on behalf of Sydney, as an emporium for all the trade of the whole colony. If again the comparative cost of transit by the two routes be taken into consideration, the complaints of the petitioners are equally unfounded and untenable. Upon reference to the present charges on the Great Northern line, for the conveyance of the staple commodity of the north, viz., wool, your memorialists find for bales not exceeding 5 cwt., &c. The G. N. R. rate for bales of wool not exceeding 5 cwt.:—From Warrah to Newcastle, 154 miles, 8s. 5d.; from Murrurundi to Newcastle, 120 miles, 8s. 1d.; from Singleton to Newcastle, 49 miles, 4s. 5d.; steamer freight from Newcastle to Sydney, per bale, 3s. 6d.—8s. 2d. Taking the distance from Singleton to Sydney, as stated in correspondence, to be 125, and charging at the same proportion as from Warrah to Newcastle, the rail charge direct to Sydney would come to exactly the same as now via Newcastle and steamer. Thus it will be seen that neither in point of time, nor of cost, nor of safety in transit, is there just ground of complaint on the part of the petitioners, nor is there any cause to apprehend, as was alleged by a member of the deputation, that 'stock sent by the steamers will be actually starved,' and arrive in an unfit condition for market; and if this statement is good for aught it applies with equal force and propriety to the route the petitioners recommend. In all respects, therefore, your memorialists contend that the said petitioners have entirely failed to make out a case sufficient to justify the demand made by them upon the Government to interpose, and, by the construction of this branch line, to divert the traffic from so large a portion of the Great Northern Line as lies between Singleton and Newcastle, and thus depreciate its value, which, besides, would have the effect of disturbing the now well-established course of commerce, without any corresponding public advantage to be derived therefrom. With all deference, your memorialists submit that it should be made incumbent on the promoters of this competing branch line to furnish much more satisfactory data as to the remunerative, as well as the probable depreciatory, character of the one proposed, in order to entitle it to be entertained at all by the Government. Such a setting forth would be demanded of them by the Parliament of England, even though the money for giving effect to their purpose should be supplied by themselves, in which way they would be bound to show not only that the particular line would be remunerative, but that the means of accomplishing that end shall not be derived from the resources of any existing line, which of itself would be sufficient for the Parliament to refuse its sanction to any proposed competing line brought before it. If this be in cases where private enterprise supplies the means, how much more is such precaution necessary where promotions of such schemes have the public treasury to draw upon, instead of their own resources in carrying out their own purposes. Your memorialists, therefore, respectfully pray that for these and other reasons, that the Government will refuse its sanction to the proposition of the petitioners, and decline to include the same in any railway scheme they have in contemplation of submitting to Parliament, and your memorialists, &c., &c. That in consideration of the large mass of free selectors and other settlers upon the land in the far interior, whose prosperity so largely depends upon a ready access to market for their produce, no branch lines whatever, especially of a competitive character, should be constructed not until such time as the wants of these people have been met by the extensions and completion of trunk lines to the remotest boundaries of the colony. Only by such means can the remote lands of the colony be beneficially occupied by that most desirable of all classes, an agricultural yeomanry; nor can the plethora of population concentrated in the metropolis be otherwise distributed and profitably converted into producers and cultivators of the soil, and thus render the colony self-supporting and independent of foreign importations of that first necessary of life, the daily bread of the people."

Mr. A. BROWN said that the memorial that had been presented to the Ministry simply set forth a reply to the allegations that had been made at the public meeting at Singleton. All they wished to do was to refute what had been said untruthfully both here and at Singleton.

Mr. CREER said that no doubt it would be alleged that their motives were selfish, but for all that he considered they had good grounds for protesting against the railway from Singleton to Sydney, for there was a very large population between Singleton and Newcastle that would not be benefited by it. In addition to that, the whole country would benefit more by extending the Northern railway to the Border than by connecting the Northern and Southern lines. It was a very wise policy to finish first the three trunk lines of the colony before making branch lines.

Mr. HUNGERFORD said that without going into the matter of expediency, there were questions of principle at issue. If the Government did construct a line, Singleton was not the place to make the connection. If the Government did, however, take such a narrow view of the matter, they would do one of two things—either they would divert the traffic to the Northern line, and so prevent competition by the port of Newcastle, which would benefit alone the merchants of Sydney, or they would not divert the traffic; and in the latter case the whole expenditure would be useless. He maintained that it would not divert the traffic, and that, with the present line of steamers, all they required at Newcastle to make it a depot for the Northern and North-Western districts' trade, was the expenditure of a little public money. He would oppose any extension of railway from the Northern to the Southern line until other lines had been carried out.

Mr. JACOB said he felt it necessary to set himself right. He had consented to attend this deputation solely to oppose a railway to Singleton because it was simply Cheaterism, but he had not made up his mind about connecting the Great Northern Line with Sydney. There was no doubt the connection should be somewhere near Newcastle, for it was absurd to expect the vast population below Singleton to go by Singleton round to Sydney.

Mr. SUTHERLAND, in reply, stated that he thought the answers given to the deputation that waited on him, and presented him with a petition from the inhabitants of Singleton and surrounding districts to have a line direct from Singleton to Sydney, would be sufficient for this deputation. The remarks he then made would show to this deputation that he had at present no intention of bringing such a measure as was spoken of before Parliament. The members of the present Government were not opposed to gaining information on this subject, as well as others, from the best sources they could. This information was first derived from the people themselves, and then by surveys, to see whether the knowledge possessed by the people was correct, and whether a cheap line could be got from one point to another. All such information was valuable if it did not cost too much money. A great many surveys had been already made, and he supposed there would be a great many more before any Government decided on connection between the two lines. The present Government had no intention of doing anything beyond trial surveys which had been ordered by Parliament. In one case only had there been a consent to make a different survey of a line from that ordered by Parliament. His object was to get the best information he could on this most important subject. Years after this it would doubtless be considered by some Government that the present Government had a great deal to do before they came to that. They had an enormous expenditure to go on with that would be more advantageous to the interests of the colony than this line would be at present. With reference to what had been said by Mr. Hungerford, his feelings had always been, and always would be, with the consumer. He believed that the nearer the consumer and the producer were brought together the better it would be for the interests of the country, and it should be the desire of the Government to facilitate this as much as possible. The deputation might rely that there would be no necessity for voting for or against this session.

The deputation then thanked the Minister, and retired.

RAILWAY FROM NEWCASTLE TO SYDNEY THROUGH RYDE.

The deputation appointed at the recent public meeting held at Ryde for the purpose of advocating the construction of a railway connecting the Great Northern line with Sydney, and coming by a direct route from Newcastle across Peat's Ferry, and through the district of Ryde, waited upon the Minister for Works yesterday. The deputation, as appointed at the meeting, were the Mayor and the aldermen of Ryde, the Hon. J. Blaxland, and Messrs. E. Terry, R. R. Terry, C. Blaxland, G. Wicks, P. Penson, Selby, N. Curwood, J. E. Manning, G. C. Watson, G. M. Pope, and Dr. Cumming; but some of these gentlemen did not attend at the Works Office. In addition to those who were present, the three gentlemen who formed the deputation from Balmain attended.

Mr. J. R. LINSLEY (Mayor of Ryde) read the resolutions passed at the public meeting recently held at Ryde, and explained (as already published in the report of the public meeting) the route which the Ryde people considered the railway ought to take, and the advantages of that route. The immediate object which the deputation had in view was to induce the Government to have a trial survey of the work made.

Mr. WATSON, Mr. SELBY, Mr. TERRY, the Hon. J. BLAXLAND, and Mr. HUTCHINSON also addressed the Minister upon the subject.

Mr. SUTHERLAND said he supposed it was not expected by any one of the deputation that the survey would be made at once. Three different routes for connecting the Great Northern railway with Sydney had been partially surveyed already; but from the representations which the deputation had made he thought they were entitled to a trial survey before any decision was come to by the Government upon the subject of the proposed railway, and as soon as they could spare a surveyor for the purpose he would be sent to make the survey asked for. The deputation would have to send a guide with the surveyor. In the first instance the survey would be simply a flying one, which would not cost much money or occupy much time. As the hands of the Government were quite full of railways for the present session of Parliament, it would not be expected that the Government should this session decide upon any route for connecting the Northern railway with the Western railway or with Sydney; but he would have it placed on record that, as soon as a surveyor could be spared from the lines now being prepared for Parliamentary sanction, a trial survey could be made through the Ryde district.

INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTION FOR THE BLIND.

The Honorable Sir Alfred Stephen, K.C.M.G.; Mr. Shepherd Smith, Mr. Robert L. Tooth, Mr. John Dawson, and Alderman Palmer had an interview with the Colonial Secretary (the Honorable Michael Fitzpatrick) yesterday morning, to ask the Government to grant pecuniary aid to the Industrial Institution for the Adult Blind, which is about to be formed, and for which the very handsome stone structure at the corner of William and Boomerang streets has been erected. They submitted the following statement of the scope and objects of the institution:—

"The object of this institution, although like the kindred establishment near Newtown, devoted to the cause of the indigent blind, is distinct in character. It is intended for adults, and exclusively for workers, or such of the adult blind in Sydney and its suburbs, as may be willing to work. The noble charity to which reference has been made is for the reception, care, and education, of blind, as also of deaf and dumb, children. Experience has shown that it is most undesirable, and, if it were desirable, that it is not possible, to provide for both the young and the grown up of these classes, or either of them, in the same building, or under the same management. Persons of very different qualifications, and pursuits of a very different kind, are required for the blind and untaught child, from those which are necessary for the instruction and supervision of men and women past the age of submission to parental control; most of them with formed and some of vicious habits, many without education of any kind, and not a few living a life of idleness, from which it is difficult entirely to reclaim them. Yet this idleness, and the evils which flow from it, affecting the public more even than the individual, are often—it will be found—the result mainly of ignorance how to work, or want of the opportunity or means of working to any useful purpose. The 'Industrial Blind Institution' is designed to correct those evils; and, in so doing, furnish not alone to the idle but to the industrious among the blind efficient instruction in work, convenient rooms for working in, materials with which to work, and a place in which the work may advantageously to the workers be displayed and disposed of. The idea is not a new one. Similar establishments exist in England; and it is proposed to follow, as nearly as may be, the plan of that which has been successfully carried on for several years past, under the name of Workshops for the Blind, in the great town of Liverpool. Charity, therefore, except in its best form, that of teaching and aiding self-help, is not the sole motive of the promoters. They hope, by the means enumerated, to rescue the class of blind beggars from the streets, thus relieving passers-by from solicitations for which there will no longer be an excuse. The public expenditure, too, may be lessened by substituting for eleemosynary support in the various Benevolent Asylums the fruits of well-directed labour. The institution will probably be rendered attractive by music or other sources of recreation for the workers there; and if its pecuniary resources permit, a limited though small number of these will perhaps be received into the building as residents. The main object will be, however, to make the establishment a place for instruction and profitable work during the day; thus enabling the unfortunates admitted into it to return at night with their earnings, each to his own home. In schools for the blind, all is taught the inmates which skill can impart; but it is afterwards that the battle of life, with its inexorable dependence at every step on others, begins. Here, then, this institution lends its aid; becoming at once the blind man's merchant and landlord, and agent, on terms which will to a large extent compensate him for the disadvantages inseparable from his condition. It remains to be stated, that the good work here shadowed forth could not have been attempted without the generous gift of one individual—the late Mr. Wood, of the Glebe, who, dying in February, 1875, left £5000 by his will, towards the erection of a building dedicated to the relief of the blind. That sum, supplemented by a few other donations, has been expended in carrying out the design of the founder, on a piece of land granted by the Crown for that purpose, situated at the junction of William-street with the Boomerang Road. But the fund, owing to the exceptionally high price of labour and building materials, is now exhausted."

The deputation discussed the subject very fully with the Colonial Secretary during the interview, which lasted about an hour; and while they desired primarily a grant in aid of £2000 to complete the construction and furnishing of the building, the conversation elicited the fact that their chief desire was to start the institution, and they would be glad of help in any form which would enable them to do that.

Mr. FITZPATRICK said that it would be his duty to submit this matter to his colleagues, because it was unusual in its character. He might say that his conviction hardened with every month of experience in office, that all private charities were choked the moment the Government put out their hands to help them. The practice which various Administrations had adopted was that public charities, not being Government institutions, should be deemed eligible to receive help from the State to the extent of private subscriptions, and thereby a strong inducement was held out to private benevolence, seeing that every pound which was given by individuals would be doubled by the grant of Parliament. That principle did not apply to this case, which was that a certain gentleman dying left a sum of money to found a certain institution. Government granted the site, and the committee had erected a costly building which exceeded their means, and they now asked that the Government should supplement the cost of the building. If the Government did that they would be making a naked grant of money which would elicit no charity from elsewhere. It was money to be granted to make up a past deficiency, not to induce future contributions. If the application were that Parliament should be asked to grant pound for pound to be contributed, he had no doubt his colleagues would be able to comply with it, but here they asked for £2000 to complete the building. The institution had been projected without reference to the Government; but if the Government now gave £2000, they would have to go on giving, for he never knew a case in which an institution once got money from the Government where they did not come again. The result would be that eventually the whole cost of the institution would be thrown upon the public funds. If the Government had been consulted in the first instance they might have taken other and more economical means of providing for the case of those proposed to be benefited.

The reply of the deputation to the position taken up by the Colonial Secretary was this: What was really wanted was to finish and furnish the building now nearly completed, so that operations might be commenced, and form the ground of an appeal to the public for private subscriptions. The grant of the site by the Government might be held to be equivalent to Mr. Wood's bequest; and the money grant which the Government might give would be equivalent to the contributions of individuals other than Mr. Wood which had been expended in the building. The deputation did not asked to be recouped for the expenditure which they had made, but they desired that the Government should recognise that the business in hand was a great beneficent public object which could not be accomplished so long as the building was permitted to remain unfinished and unfurnished, and the large expenditure already incurred to lie waste. One member of the deputation (Sir Alfred Stephen) was of opinion that the object proposed by the promoters of this institution was more essentially public than many of the charities to which the Government subscribed, some of these institutions being to a large extent simply swindles. Thus, for instance, there was the Destitute Children's Asylum, to which the Government gave five times as much as private individuals. That institution relieved parents and relatives of their just responsibility, and there was a large amount of downright swindling going on there. It was really important to the public that these blind people should be rescued from idleness and wickedness.

Mr. FITZPATRICK admitted that the Government had to pay almost the whole cost of the Destitute Children's Asylum, and feared that the time was rapidly coming when the Government would have to pay every penny of the cost of that and some other public charities. As soon as the Government touched an institution of the kind, the sources of private charity dried up. He would submit the case to his colleagues.

THIS DAY, at 11 a.m., shipment of Camphorwood Trunks and Japanese Blinds. Attractive sale for the trade—Bradley, Newton, and Lamb, auctioneers, Spring and O'Connell streets.—ADV.

THE

(FROM OUR SPECIAL COMMISSIONER.)

HEAD-QUARTERS' CAMP AT BOULOUPARI, August 8.

The second day after my arrival here we took another little walk before breakfast round the other side of Pic Ouitchambo. More cocoanut trees were cut down, but no natives, nor trace of them discovered. For a week the same operations have been carried on. But on the 3rd instant the troops were under fire. I was not with them, for these morning marches with no result did not please me. On foot the fatigue was too great, and I could not obtain a horse. On this occasion there was a halt on one of the spurs of Ouitchambo, and the officers were sitting down when one shot was discharged at them from a distance. A volley was fired by the soldiers, a few natives were seen running away, and then the troops marched back. When I met them on their return Lieutenant Frappier told me he thought one man was hit by the way he ran. In half-an-hour the story enlarged to one Canaque certainly wounded, at the dinner table at night it was asserted that one was killed. It was the old tale of the "Three Crows" over again. These lack of events are distressing to a newspaper correspondent, and to-morrow I intend starting for Uaraii, the northern limit of the revolt. It is true Colonel Wendling has kindly promised me great events in a few days, but I cannot wait for these. I am informed by the officers that the result of the reconnaissance during the last days is that they have discovered it is easier to attack Pic Ouitchambo from the other side. Any stockman could have told them this, and after my first day's experience I am prepared to vouch that it could not be more difficult. The spur of the mountain on which I nearly gave up the ghost has been called after me. One acquires notoriety by various means.

But if a grand attack is made on Ouitchambo I very much doubt if the rebels will be found there. All the days and nights we see the smoke of their fires in the surrounding mountains. They are there in numbers, but are they going to stop there to be killed, or will they make a stand and fight as the Maories did in New Zealand? Not much, I think! And viewing the country I consider it almost an impossibility for soldiers to pursue and capture the natives over rocks and hills, and through the scrub. The soldiers encumbered with clothes and accoutrements cannot travel like the Canaque. Our young conscripts, too, good enough on parade, are now doing work to which they are totally unaccustomed and are quite unfitted. In saying this I do not wish for one moment to reflect on their courage, but the fact is this war of repression on the Canaques must be made "a la Canaque." Colonel Wendling appreciates this to an extent, and native manners have been adopted in the burning of villages and tabus, and the destruction of cocoanut trees and vegetation. An attempt has been made to burn the forests, but considering the tropical vegetation, naturally with no result. But vandalism is not altogether war. To march out day after day a distance of twelve to twenty miles to cut down a cocoanut tree and then return—this surely cannot impress the Canaques much with the prowess or ability of the French soldiers. Colonel Wendling and the officers here are all good fellows and gentlemen. I have been treated by them with kindness and consideration, but I am forced to record that they do not properly understand the occasion as yet. In time they and the troops may prove equal to the guerilla warfare of the Canaques, but at present it annoys me greatly to see day after day the soldiers march back to a fortified camp, and to realise that six weeks after the outbreak affairs here are no more advanced than directly after the sad event. The fault is that Colonel Wendling and his officers wish to do everything themselves, and to gain the credit to themselves. There is not here a single man who knows the country to give proper information to the Commander-in-Chief. It is true that there is a small troop of mounted volunteers, composed of stockmen and settlers, but these have not been properly utilised nor treated. The fault has been in their organization. Monsieur Morissot, their commander, is an old naval officer. The fitness of things is rather outraged when a sailor assumes a cavalry command. This may account for the fact that he has done nothing. Captain Morissot has been here three times from Noumea, and carefully gone back again. The volunteers, a few of whom are English, are here now, under the command of Lieutenant Saxton. This gentleman is the nephew of my old friend Dr. Saxton, physician and banker of Market Drayton. He formerly had a station in New Zealand, but is now the manager for the various properties throughout the island belonging to Monsieur Pelletier, the Mayor of Noumea.

Saxton, tall, slight, and supple, is the beau ideal of a horseman. He is calm and cool, with true English sang froid. "All friends round the Wrekin" to whom the family name is known will be pleased, although not astonished, to hear that the Shropshire man has proved himself worthy of his breeding. In the only fight had with the natives near here, Saxton protected the rearguard with a few of his men. Captain de la Follye de Joux, the soldier of Burgundy, jester and fighter of the "first force," in the conversation of the mess table bore testimony to Mr. Saxton's services, and when he arrived in camp all the officers welcomed him as a brave comrade. But Lieutenant Saxton would never sit down at our mess. "I am a volunteer like my men," said he to me, "and I must stick to them." Amongst the volunteers there were some Australian stockmen, and French settlers who knew the country. Fricottee, one whose wife and children were killed, was here. But Colonel Wendling does not seem to know how to utilise these men. They have been, to use the words of one of them, "humbugged about." A day or two back they had a great grievance in that some of their horses were taken to mount the Arabs, eight of whom are at present in camp. Now there is a tradition amongst the French that an Arab is the first horseman in the world, a man of war to be feared by all. There are Arabs and Arabs, and I think a great many of them are first-class frauds. I am much of the same opinion as Mark Twain respecting these children of the desert. Those here now are certainly not of much use. They soon kill horses in the bush, not being used to such work, and I don't think much of their courage. Compared to an Australian stockman they cannot ride. Yet Colonel Wendling and all the officers have a great fancy for these Arabs, and they are taken out as mounted guards, with the daily "excursions." They have a mess of their own, and in defiance of the Koran devote themselves to drinking rum on their return. They are also distinguished as "looters," and the deserted houses of the colonists around here which have escaped the Canaques have been pillaged by the Arabs. These are like Hans Breitmann in that they "leave nothing behind."

If there were no startling events, I have had, during the last few days, a study of camp life. One night I really thought something was about to happen. We sat at dinner. Our dinners were always pretty good; Doctor Lossouarn being "chef de gamelle," and in default of medical practice devoting his massive brain power to varying the "menu." This was rather monotonous. There was too much beef. We had many dishes, but all of the flesh of the ox. However, with a salad and good red wine and bread, one can always dine; and we enjoyed ourselves, and laughed and chaffed, and recked little of Atai, the rebel, hiding in the recesses of Ouitchambo. French people will keep up a play of wit and of words for an hour on the most trivial subject. We had not many themes but made the most of them. For example, in the lack of female society, we worshipped a portrait, that of a charming lady, wife of a colonist near Bouloupari, who fled in time from the natives. The carte, with divers other things, was found in her house. Lieutenant Rochelle took possession of it, and daily after dinner handed it round for inspection. Then it was placed on a little altar formed of salt cellars, and with the candles around looked quite imposing. But it was rather cruel of Captain de Joux to put the long black curls belonging to a lady, and left behind in her flight, on the top of the great tabu captured by him. A tabu is a carved pole adorned with shells and feathers, which, like a standard of old, is erected in the village of a chief to protect it from intrusion. At least it warns away outsiders. Some of these tabus are works of primitive art. I have seen one with the entire figure of a French officer, a good likeness, carved thereon. Others are rude blocks. Certain shells are considered valuable, and tabus are generally adorned with these. Bien! on this night we were amusing ourselves with admiring the portrait of Madame ——, when suddenly there was the report of a chassepot.

The commandant arose, we all looked at each other. Then another and another report. We all got up, Colonel Wendling the last, camly finishing his glass of kirschwasser before he left. I thought "now there is an event. I have been good lately, and Providence is kind to me. A night attack, not too much of an attack, but just a few killed. What a treat for the readers of the 'Sydney Morning Herald.'" You see I looked at this from a journalistic point of view. I came to New Caledonia to see fights and such things, and I had been disappointed as yet. Dr. Lossouarn, M. Duval, and the telegraph clerk rushed for their revolvers. These weapons were the bane of their lives. None of us would walk a yard outside the stockade without being armed, and the civilians not accustomed to carry such were greatly worried thereby. They would hang them up on a tree or post, and, forgetting them for a time would come back to fetch them, greatly exercised in their minds at their temporary defenceless state. We, at Bouloupari, have great respect for the lurking Canaque, who is supposed to be always with us. So seizing our pistols we go different ways. I take the path to the perch of the sentry in the garden, and climbing the ladder see a small fire, which seems about two hundred yards off. I hardly fancy that the attacking Canaque would let us know his whereabouts by kindling a fire. But on this a chassepot volley is being directed. I go to the back of the stockade, on the side facing the light, and find all the officers gathered here. A guard is sent out to investigate the mystery, and the men advance, firing rapidly. They are only absent a few minutes, the fire is quenched, and on their return we find that it was caused by the smouldering embers left by some workmen during the day. But the instructions to the sentries are to fire on any light or moving thing seen outside the line after sundown, and this instance shows that they will fulfil their orders. Our fears all quieted, we return to our coffee, and the cry "Bon quart partout" is heard all around once more.

I spend my hours during the day (what time Colonel Wendling and his men are cutting down cocanut trees, and destroying palings) in strolling about the camp and interviewing every one that I can. Dr. Lossouarn writing to a lady in Noumea, thus described my movements, and as an impartial outside testimony I record it. Said the doctor, "he goes about all day, asks questions from every one, makes many notes quietly, and seems to have a very good appreciation of 'la cuisine Française.'" I acknowledge the corn! Besides the stockade, the camp now comprises a dozen buildings, all built with mud walls and thatched roofs. Four of these are old, the remainder have been erected by the convicts, of whom there are more than 150 in the camp. The barracks which they occupy are in their internal arrangements something like stables, being apparently divided into stalls. Other houses are occupied by officers and the surveillants of the convicts. There is a butchery and bakery, and sheds for workshops—all these, with their thatched roofs could be burnt very easily. There is one exception, however, the present telegraph office, built of successive squared logs, with an iron roof, formerly used as the blockhouse and calaboose of the gendarmerie of Bouloupari. It was in this that some Canaque chiefs were confined, and from which they were released by their followers on that ill-fated 26th of June. The real truth of the events of that day of the massacres here will never be known. All nearly have gone who could testify. Those in the neighbourhood who escaped in time give most extraordinary accounts of the proceedings of the officials. The whole circumstances evidence the most culpable negligence on the part both of the dead and the living. Of the whole causes of the revolt I will write when I know the country better; of the immediate cause of the massacres I am competent to judge. The commencement was on the 19th of last June, when a miserable convict named Chene was killed on a station belonging to M. Dezarnaulds, some fifteen miles from here, on the road to Ourail. It was a personal vengeance, a judgment on Chene's vices. He and the native woman who lived with him, and a child were killed. Another infant received a cut on the head, but the mother in falling covered it with her clothes. It was rescued afterwards by a brave New Hebrides boy, one of the station hands, who carried the little one to Noumea. I saw them both the other day. Little "Maggie," the half-caste, with her head bandaged, was tended by Madame Dezarnaulds in a manner which shows her great kindness of heart. Poor little Maggie! I wonder what will be your future. Your coming into the world was the immediate cause of the death of hundreds; yet you are saved. For what?

A ticket-of-leave man killed, there was nothing in that! The gendarmes scoured the country and arrested the chiefs of the surrounding tribes who were placed in the prisons at La Foa and Bouloupari. It was a custom in case of any trespasses by the natives to arrest the chiefs, holding them as securities for the handing over of the criminals. If the chiefs themselves were culpable, I believe they would always find substitutes among their followers to admit and suffer for their crimes. A "conseil de guerre" would have dealt with this case, and the natives who might acknowledge their guilt would most probably have been transported to the Isle of Pines or Cochin China, and so this affair would have been finished. But I am told that the gendarmes threatened the natives that their chiefs would be shot on a certain date; and, looking at the general character of your gendarme I think it possible that he would be guilty of that or any other similar folly. These men have been the curse of the country. Lazy and insolent, they have tried to tyrannise over colonist and Canaque alike. In the recent events they have proved their cowardice. In olden time they would ride up to a tribe and bid any number of natives to follow them to be locked up in the calaboose. The great respect for authority which the Canaques have engrained in their nature from their earliest youth always caused them to obey. But the prestige of the gendarme is now gone for ever. I believe that fear for the safety of their chiefs alone caused the Canaques to attack the gendarmeries at La Foa and Bouloupari, and with the sole purpose, at first, of releasing the prisoners. On the morning of the 25th June a convict arrived at the Penitencier Agricole of Fonwhari with the news that all the gendarmes at La Foa were massacred, and that the surrounding colonists were being attacked. The Directeur, Mons. Hayes, rode at once to Teremba, and the news was telegraphed to the Governor, and the Vire left Noumea in the afternoon with a number of troops under the command of Colonel Galli-Passeboc for the scene of the revolt. It must be understood that the telegraphic system of New Caledonia is very complete, and that on this Tuesday afternoon every military post and gendarme station knew the facts of an attack by the natives at La Foa. At least the officers did. Now, what happened here at Bouloupari? This was a post of a brigade and lieutenant of gendarmerie named Schenck. There was also a telegraph station. A few hundred yards from here was a convict camp, where there were thirty men with four surveillants and their families. Half a mile further on was the hotel and store of Mons. Mostini. There were many settlers' houses all around, some almost within gunshot. Altogether in this district, perhaps there were 800 white people. Now on this Tuesday afternoon the lieutenant of gendarmes and his men knew perfectly well of the massacres at La Foa, not thirty miles distant. Did Schenck warn the surrounding colonists to be on their guard? No! and even the officials of the convict camp were not advised. All the deaths in this district may be placed at this man's door. On the morning of Wednesday, the 26th June, he rode over to Buraki to receive some twenty men, who were landed there to operate in conjunction with Colonel Galli Passeboc from the side of La Foa against the revolters. At Bouloupari the gendarmes, sunk in a Capua of sloth and security, went to their breakfasts. It is true that the previous night they had kept a watch over the block-house, but now they left their arms and went to feed in a cool grass kiosque which served them for a "salle-a-mange," and which is still standing. Others eat there now, and reck not of the blood upon the lintels. Looking at this spot now, I view the scene in my mind's eye. I see the Canaques approaching through the naoulis, intent on rescuing their chiefs, and my first thought is—Are they the same who committed the massacres at La Foa? If this had been a preconcerted scheme, the attacks on the two posts would have taken place at the same time, and not with an interval of twenty-four hours. It seems to me that if not identically the same men who attacked La Foa, these have been aroused by messengers who have told them of the easy victory over the dreaded palefaces, and the delivery of their chiefs, and so in early morning they have collected from the tribes round about; and the gendarmes leave their chassepots and swords, and go to breakfast, and the telegraph clerk is conversing through the wire with his colleague at Teremba, and then the attack commences, and again all are an easy prey to the Canaque, and they joyfully break the bars of the blockhouse door, and their chiefs are free.

Down there, at the convict camp, within rifle-shot there is another butchery, and a butchery for which I hold the man Schenck responsible. Had every one been warned, had proper precautions been taken, not a life need have been lost at Bouloupari. A few determined men armed with rifles could have kept at bay the whole crowd of natives. But at the convict camp the unconscious surveillants were at breakfast when the Canaques swarmed in. They thought nothing of this, a daily occurrence. But the chief, M. Lece, was suspicious of their movements, and running to the house obtained his chassepot, only in time, however, to defend his own life, for his wife and two children, three comrades, and twenty-one convicts were killed. Leca escaped, after slaying many; with two or three more men like himself, the savages would have been stopped in their career. And then, as at La Foa, I can imagine how, their passions inflamed with slaughter and easy victory, the Canaques fell on the houses of the settlers around. The war on the white race had begun with them. They spared none, and I am afraid women and children suffered tortures of which it is best not to think. In savage warfare everything is permitted, and the Canaques have not been worse than the Cossacks and Bulgarians. Still Mostini and Fricotte, widowed and childless, who are now with the mounted cavaliers, may be forgiven if henceforth they draw a bead on every dark skin. Were I in their place I could not write calmly—a terrible vengeance can alone satisfy them. Still, I do not like to hear French officers tell me that they will destroy every man, "woman, and child" amongst the rebels. They degrade themselves below the level of the Canaque. And this sounds worse when one realises how little has yet been done. Whilst the Canaques were slaying and burning, when there was no resistance, until the total of victims at Bouloupari on this day numbers over eighty, the gendarme Schenck distinguished himself by a daring ride—according to his own account. He says he came into the camp from Buraki by Mr. Lewis's farm, and on getting to his own house (which was not touched, white men say, because the Canaques knew he was their best friend), he saw the gendarmerie burning and dead bodies on the ground. Hundreds of natives surrounded him. He charged through them; and on finding the gate on the hill leading down to the river being closed, his horse jumped it, and he went "ventre a terre" to Buraki. I think Schenck expects to get a ribbon for this. But Captain de Joux, who knows his man, does not believe it; and on viewing the spot I agree with him. It would take a first-rate hunter and rider to clear that five-barred gate, especially in its position; and it is an impossibility for an ordinary horse and fat gendarme to have got over without coming down. That gate spoilt Schenck's tale. It is certain that he made no effort to succour the flying colonists, and that he actually embarked his men at Buraki on board a steamer for Noumea, enunciating the philosophy that his own skin was of the most value. He would thus have left any retreating colonist without a point of refuge but for the arrival of a man-of-war and reinforcements.

But if gendarme Schenck lost his head and nerve, he was only like almost everyone else in the colony. When the news of these massacres arrived in Noumea, there was a scare which now appears ludicrous. People crowded on to the ships in the harbour. Mounted volunteers, armed with revolvers, went out to Bouloupari, saw the sight, and came back again to still more frighten the citizens with their fearful tales, yet that very night stockmen tell me they rode through Bouloupari, and the drunken natives—drunk on the spirits they had found in the hotel and gendarmerie—were lying about in all directions. The Australians fought their way through with their stockwhips. Prompt measures might have at least avenged the massacres. But operations commenced, the principal thing the soldiers did was to shoot a lot of friendly natives who had nothing at all to do with the revolt. It does not sound nice to hear of French soldiers killing three women, firing into them as they lay on the ground, whilst the men ran away. Yet this occurred at Tomo, eight miles from here. As regards affairs here now, Colonel Wendling may be exercising his men for bush fighting, but it strikes me that very valuable time is being lost.

(FROM OUR RESIDENT CORRESPONDENT.)

NOUMEA, Sept. 18.

The Government steamer Sendue left early yesterday morning, taking fifty sailors of the frigate Tage to form a "poste" at Gomen, situated seventy miles to the northward of "Poya," also some armed convicts for Bourail. Very severe weather is reported, especially on the East coast. In one telegraph office three lightning conductors were destroyed. The storm burst over Noumea at 6 p.m. last evening, and we had some hours heavy rain, such as has not been known for several years, accompanied by mild thunder and lightning. It is worthy of remark that during the past two or three years all the thunderstorms known in Noumea could be counted on the fingers of one hand. The sound of thunder is almost forgotten here. On the subject of the position of affairs in Noumea, it is very much to be regretted that such erroneous opinions are held by many persons in Australia in consequence of their non-acquaintance with the country. Many write to their friends here expressing a sincere hope that they may not suffer from the blacks, and advising them to leave such a dangerous place. They distinguish not between the relative situations of different parts of the country, reading Noumea in New Caledonia. All is the same to them. Noumea never was, nor ever will be, in any more danger from the natives than would Sydney be were the blacks at Cooper's Creek to make a murderous attack upon the few scattered settlers there. The precautions adopted by the authorities on the first outbreak of the revolt were more than sufficient for the protection of the town, even had the natives been numerous or mad enough to try their devil's deeds upon it. The most perfect safety reigns in Noumea, and for many many miles beyond, even should the whole black population rise, put aside their personal animosities, and join in one common object that would never be an attack upon the town. They are too shrewd for that. Divided tribe against tribe, scattered in different bands throughout a most difficult country, in which are no natural resources nor artificial ones for providing subsistence for any large number of men, this revolt will be confined to the country and unsettled districts. Death has made its many victims amongst the poor colonists, the list now mounts up to near 200. Ruin stares many more in the face, or at least years of privation and toil to recover the past.

The progress of the country districts has received a rude check, and the opinion expressed in a former communication that the Government would find itself saddled with a long and expensive native war, has alas, been, we fear, realised too surely; but Noumea itself never has, nor ever can be in any danger whatever. So much for the comfort of those in Australia, who have friends residing here. There are very many, for the English element is an important one in our population.

Many most virulent attacks have been written and published against the place which for a time, until their animus and falseness were demonstrated, created a prejudice against the town, such as it never merited, and over which it is already triumphing.

19th.

A petition is being prepared by a number of colonists who have cattle and property in the Poya and Kone districts, praying for the aid of a few soldiers, and authorisation to arm a number of Volunteers for the purpose of proceeding to the scenes of the new outbreak, and dealing with the natives as they merit. General astonishment is expressed at the fact that the gentlemen who went in the Croix du Sud to rescue the colonists whose lives were in danger, and who, but for the arrival of the small steamer, would most certainly have been massacred, are permitted by the Government to pay the expenses of the vessel (£10 per day) during the five days of their absence. Incredible though this statement will appear to your readers, it is an absolute fact, to which the local journal has called attention in italics.

The mail steamer Gunga, Captain Webber, arrived. No news of any importance respecting this country came by her. A general and staff, from France, came in her. His mission is the usual military inspection. His visit is very opportune. Much surprise is expressed at the incorrect impression of affairs here which is entertained in France, and much regret at the non-arrival of more troops. The "Honailon" (pronounced "Wylo") friendly tribes on the East coast have started to cross the mountains and engage the revolted tribes, who have committed the new outrages. The Government have promised ten soldiers aid an officer to the presenters to the petition for and against the natives. Fifty volunteers are ready to start for the north. The spirited manner in which, despite all adverse circumstances, the colonists have acted all throughout this sad series of troubles is something as remarkable as it is admirable; the more especially when complaints are general of conduct so shameful as to be beyond credence, were the witnesses and sufferers not so numerous. It is a matter of public notoriety and scandal in the town, that had an officer of gendarmes, to whom was entrusted a company of soldiers, acted with the courage of a school-girl, the revolt at Boularpari would in all probability have been crushed out the day of its outburst. This officer arrived on the scene whilst the bodies of the victims were still warm. He fled to his men, only a few miles—five or six—distant, and there entrenched himself for the night, refusing every appeal for assistance. It is an absolute fact that when the husband of a poor mutilated and supposed dying woman asked this personage why he did not send back some men with the messenger he sent ahead for aid to protect the small body of helpless women and children expecting to be pursued and massacred by the blacks, he unblushingly replied, "Ma peau d'abord" (my own skin first). Another party comprising six children below the age of seven years, two women, and eleven men, after walking for miles, the children, barefooted, traversing rivers up to their necks, and enduring dreadful hardships, were conducted by a brave convict man to a point of land. Pointe Noir, a mile or so from a gend armes poste. Three of the band of fugitives (three convicts) made the tour of the bay several miles in order to ask the loan of a boat from the gend armes, who had several, for the purpose of bringing the helpless band across the water into safety. The boat was refused, and the owner of a small coaster, who at once expressed his determination to go across in his boat for the people, was prevented doing so by the gend'armes, who sent back one of the convicts to conduct the wearied terrified group to the poste where they arrived, wet to the skin, as they had been all day, at about 10 o'clock at night, saved by the poor convict who frequently had to go on his hands and knees to distinguish the difficult track by which he was piloting the poor creatures. This is the account rendered by several of the principal actors in the dread scene. On the same day, when the officer of the gendarmes fled from Boularpari, four stockmen applied to the gendarmes at the nearest post for help and arms, in order to return to Boularpari. Both were refused. With nothing but their stockwhips they returned, found the blacks nearly all helplessly drunk, lying or rolling about in all directions. They flogged them with their whips. Had the gend arme officer who was trembling in his shoes but four or five miles distant returned with his twenty-nine soldiers, he could have captured the whole lot. The very name of a gend'arme is a word of reproach here.

22nd.

Fighting is generally carried on by the troops and friendly natives from the East Coast against the rebels in the neighbourhood of Bourail and Poya.

Sept. 23.

The body of poor Monsieur Houdaille has been found by the officer commanding a detachment of twenty-five soldiers, who, with 250 faithful natives of the Houailon tribes on the east coast, attacked the rebels at Adio, killing several, and putting the rest to flight. A friendly chief was wounded by a gunshot, one of the rare instances in which the enemy have succeeded in wounding the attacking party. On every occasion the rebels have been beaten off ignominiously, and with heavy losses. Rarely is there any casualty on the side of the attacking party. Several petty chiefs are killed, in addition to the important chiefs whose deaths have been already reported. The tribes of the Boularpari and Foa districts are so weakened by the many losses inflicted upon them, that, as I was informed yesterday by an officer just returned from the scene of operations, they have changed their usual habits and places of camping. No longer can their whereabouts be calculated upon with any more certainty than that of a stray horse. In fact, they have now to be tracked very much in the same way as many an old bushman, with bridle over his shoulder, has gone at early dawn in search of his errant steed. Although the revolt has spread to the tribes north of, and at, Bourail, up to the present it seems to limit itself somewhat, as in the Foa and Boularpari districts. There is grave cause for apprehension that it may extend. There is equally good hope of its not doing so, from the fact of the co-operation of several friendly and powerful tribes, their defeat on all occasions when the rebels are found, the large number killed already, and though last (not least) the energetic measures pursued by Monsieur des Essarts, a superior officer, commander of the most powerful man-of-war here. This gentleman has been gazetted as Commander-in-chief of the northern part of New Caledonia. With a troop of his trusty sailors, he has personally traversed the rugged mountains in the very heart of the most powerful and doubtful tribes. His personal visits, backed up by the knowledge of his powerful vessel being on the coast, must have an excellent effect, strengthening the allegiance of the faithful tribes and deterring the open rebellion of such as are vacillating. Bad as the situation is, and small though the military force at the service of the colony, we may yet hope that, aided by the excellent spirit of the colonists, the Government may, by the adoption of vigorous measures to the utmost of their power prevent the full extension of this revolt in quarters where it would be a work of time, difficulty, and cost to stifle it. The detention of the frigate Tage with her powerful crew until some more forces arrive is a step hailed with great satisfaction.

25th.

Yesterday was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the colony of New Caledonia. In all previous instances the occasion has been observed with joy and festivities. Regattas, races, athletic games, fireworks, Government ball, &c., &c. This year the country is in general mourning, and a mass for the victims held in the church was the only thing to mark the day, unless the fears entertained by some timid creatures that the day would be signalised by some demonstration on the part of the Kanaks, which some wag, on seeing an officer of gend'armes, dash through the town, followed by an orderly, at a pace rather more rapid than usual, declared had commenced, and the first fugitives had arrived.

26th.

Information from Bourail announced that a band of from 150 to 200 canaques made a sudden dash at the post, formed by the company of sailors from the Lamothe-Piquet, at Guaro, a place on the seaboard about ten miles from Bourail. They were so warmly received that they beat, as many as were able, a more rapid retreat than advance. One surveillant shot seven. This result of an attempted surprise will cool their ardour somewhat.

27th.

Colonel Wendling, during a short visit to headquarters, brings the gratifying intelligence that the revolt may be considered quite stamped out in the Boularpari district.

All the villages, to the number of near fifty, the plantations, cocoanuts, bananas, taros, sugar-cane, every ordinary means of subsistence, are utterly demolished. For some time the hunted blacks have been digging up the roots of the "mananyah," a wild creeper, glad to save themselves thus from starvation. "Postes" are formed and roads cut in all directions. The soldiers have had no feather-bed time of it—every second day twelve hours' marching over fearful mountains, accompanied by a hard-working band of friendly natives, whose abilities for destruction are described by the Colonel as something remarkable. The few remaining natives of the Boularpari tribes are reported to have fled towards Bourail to join the new insurgents there. A post is to be formed near the scene of poor Houdaille's massacre, and will be invaluable to a the settlers. Cannibalism is now known to exist amongst the rebels. 'Tis to be hoped they will exercise the accomplishment upon each other. The most incorrect statements are published in the French papers respecting this revolt. The majority are to the effect that as was officially announced the "Government was master of the situation, and the revolt stamped out." The French public will learn very differently by this mail, unfortunately. One journal states that the vile conduct of certain communists at Boularpari, was the cause of the revolt there. It is a fact, that there was not a single communist in the district. So much for the unjust accusation. Rather hard upon many who have offered their services for the suppression of the revolt, the inciting causes to which had as much to do with the conduct of communists as with the manner in which preaching is carried on in St. Paul's Cathedral, London. The total number of victims known up to the present time—their names and occupations are all published—amounts to 157 killed and 10 wounded. There is a statement made in the columns of a Sydney paper which is very incorrect. It is:—"The heads of Baptiste and Atai and his son were cut off after their capture and delivery to the authorities, and sent up to Noumea, taken to Government House, and then made a public exhibition of in Noumea." The truth is this:—The heads of Atai, his son, and the sorcerer of the tribe were cut off by the natives who surprised them, and were taken into camp as a proof of their death. They were sent to Noumea, and on arrival, taken direct to the hospital and given in charge to the doctors, with strict orders from the Governor not to let them be seen by the public. An application made to photograph them was even refused, to the disappointment of the general community. So much for the heads being made a public exhibition in Noumea. The mail leaves in an hour or two, taking the largest number of passengers which ever left here in a mail vessel. Amongst them are between forty and fifty Government officers and employees of various grades, who were to have left by the frigate in June. As the Tage is detained here for an indefinite time, the Administration have judged it more economical to send away all these people rather than keep them here much longer in idleness.

Latest Intelligence.

All continues quiet throughout the island, except in those districts already reported in revolt. Several parties are in pursuit of the rebels at various places, and on all occasions when they come in contact the losses of the rebels are very heavy.

Many rifles and revolvers have been recovered. The troops, which for two months have been engaged in the district of Boularpari, now quiet, will furnish a valuable contingent of experienced and tried men for service at and to the north of Bourail.

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the International Exhibition Committee was held yesterday. Present—His Excellency Sir Hercules Robinson (in the chair), Sir John Hay, Dr. Garran, and Messrs. Cruickshank, Brodribb, Heaton, W. Bradley, J. Alger, Broomfield, Calvert, Trebeck, Oxley, Wallis, Humphrey, Pile, and J. Thompson.

In the minutes of the previous meeting it was stated that Wednesday was the day fixed for holding the meetings. This was an error and was struck out, and the minutes were then confirmed.

Mr. Brodribb reported the cordial reception that had been given to the deputation by the Colonial Secretary.

His Excellency said that they were to arrange to-day for a telegram to be sent home.

A discussion here commenced as to the day when the Exhibition should be opened. Mr. Calvert thought it would be inexpedient to go away from the day originally fixed. They might open the Exhibition, but the wool, live stock, and horticultural exhibits would not be shown until later on.

Mr. Bradley thought it would give a little more time if they opened on the 31st of August.

Dr. Garran said that after the delay that had already been the less shilly-shallying there was the better.

His Excellency then submitted the following telegram, which it was agreed should be forwarded to the Colonial Secretary to be sent home by him:—"The International Exhibition will take place as gazetted. Do all you can to further the matter. Instruct Combes and secretary to issue price of entry, and wire space required as soon as possible."

Dr. Garran pointed out that the published books intimated that the Exhibition would open on the 1st August.

His Excellency thought that the minor matter of delaying the Exhibition for a few weeks might be considered later on.

A letter from Mr. J. Bennett, offering £5000 for the amusements and advertising, was read, and deferred until the appointment of sub-committees had taken place. Drafts of letters to be sent to the secretary, to the meeting of stockowners, and to Sir Samuel Wilson (chairman of the Melbourne Commission) were submitted by his Excellency, and approved of.

The following motions proposed by Mr. Calvert were agreed to:—

"1. That for the more convenient management of matters in connection with the International Exhibition, the committee be divided into the following sub-committees, viz.:—1. Building; 2. Exterior (park) arrangements; 3. Interior (building) arrangements; 4. Entrance gates and attendants; 5. Live Stock; 6. Agricultural (products, &c.); 7. Non-agricultural; 8. Horticultural; 9. Mr. Heaton submitted a scheme for the distribution of the city and suburbs amongst the members for the purpose of collecting subscriptions, which was approved of, on the understanding that those appointed to the several districts should have power to associate others with them. The list was ordered to be printed and a copy forwarded to each member.

Sir John Hay alluded to the report of the recent deputation which had appeared in the Herald as to what he had said, and stated that it did not fully convey his meaning. He had said that this committee would be willing to act with any gentlemen appointed. He had, however, mentioned that the members of the society were quite prepared to carry out the Exhibition, and that it was only in the event of some condition of the kind mentioned being attached to the grant that he had alluded to the matter.

In reply to his Excellency, Sir John Hay stated that Mr. Fitzpatrick had reserved the right to confer with his colleagues as to whether the grant would be by a special vote or whether it would be included in the Estimates.

Dr. Garran said if it were to be only included in the Estimates, they might have to wait for months before they knew that it had passed.

His Excellency thought it would be a great mistake if any one was appointed by the Government to act on this committee who was not a member of the society. He did not see, supposing there was a difference of opinion between the members appointed by the Government and those already appointed by the Council of the society what would be done. The society was incorporated, and it was only frittering away responsibility.

Sir John Hay said that if Parliament did take that course they must make the best of it.

Mr. Heaton mentioned that the champion sculler offered to scull any one for £500 or £1000, and if he won, the money was to go to the Exhibition. The matter was postponed.

The meeting then adjourned until Friday next at 3 o'clock.

THE WEEK.

In the Queanbeyan District there has been a fresh discovery of payable gold. The locality is on the west side of the ranges westward of Lake George, convenient to the road from Goulburn to Collector. Rich specimens, one containing 50 oz. of gold, were found near the surface.

The Sydney Torpedo Corps mustered on Saturday under Major Cracknell, and did some work at Berry's Bay. Experiments were made, and explanations given of the operation of these explosives, some of which were fired. Although they were small they developed an immense power, and gave evidence of their destructiveness by upraising huge volumes of water.

Three men of the Defence Force made a very cowardly attack on a policeman on duty in Victoria-street, on the 28th ultimo, while he was endeavouring to apprehend one of their number for riotous conduct. They struck him heavily with their belts and then made off. They were subsequently apprehended, locked up, and underwent a severe punishment at the hands of the military authorities.

The musical profession in Sydney have received a notable accession to their ranks by the arrival of Mr. T. H. Bartlet, who has acquired a high reputation in England as an organist.

On Saturday the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron, notwithstanding the boisterous weather, celebrated their opening day. They mustered at their flagship, the Zealandia, and sixty gentlemen sat down to a handsomely provided repast, at which they were entertained by their commodore, Mr. W. O. Gilchrist. Commodore Hoskins, of her Majesty's navy, and Vice-Commodore Fairfax were present. Commodore Hoskins proposed "The Commodore of the Sydney Royal Yacht Squadron," to which Commodore Gilchrist responded. The squadron then went through some movements under light canvas, and parted company, leaving the evolutions for a future day.

A long distance walking contest between George King, a recently arrived wool-sorter, and J. M'Fadden, a local letter-carrier, took place at the Guild Hall, and ended on Saturday morning in a victory for King. It was a match for £20 aside for the greatest number of miles traversed in twenty-four hours. M'Fadden, after walking all night, broke down when he had reached 51 miles. King, who had started two hours later, was then only ten miles behind M'Fadden. He not only finished that distance, but continued until he had covered 80 miles. His speediest miles averaged eleven minutes each.

Rough weather prevailed on the coast on Saturday. The shipping approaching Newcastle encountered great difficulty in reaching the port, and some of the vessels ran serious risks of wreck.

At the monthly meeting of the Linnean Society, on Monday, the special committee reported in favour of establishing a zoological station in Sydney. The Hon. W. Macleay promised facilities for a temporary station in the vicinity of Elizabeth Bay. Le Comte de Castelnau contributed a paper on a new ganoid fish from Queensland. Other papers were read on a species of amphisile from Palau Islands, on macrodonturin among the natives of the Admiralty Islands; on a new goshawk from Port Moresby, and on several species of Australian micro-lepidoptera, twenty-eight of which were new. A large variety of specimens of scientific interest was exhibited.

One hundred and six persons visited the Free Public Library on Sunday afternoon, and about 1000 persons attended at the Museum.

The annual meeting of the Darlinghurst Auxiliary to the Church Society was held in St. John's Schoolroom on Monday, under the presidency of the Vicar-General. The Treasurer's statement showed the amount of subscriptions for the past year to have been £443. The meeting pledged itself to make efforts to induce all members of the church to become subscribers to the parent society.

The Associated Coalmasters at Newcastle have given notice of their intention to withdraw at the end of the year from the existing agreement regulating the price of coal, &c. It is expected that a reduction in price will be the result. It is thought that the present arrangement drives trade from the port.

Messrs. M'Culloch and Co.'s offices at Deniliquin were burned on Monday, and the adjacent bonded store was partially destroyed, with all the books and papers except those kept in the safe.

In reply to a deputation in reference to the restriction of the number of public-houses at the Glebe, the Minister for Justice and the Attorney-General stated that the establishment of a police court in that suburb should receive consideration, as there was now too much business at the city courts. As to the limitation of the number of public-houses, they thought the introduction of a short bill for that purpose would interfere with the proposal to bring in a bill to deal with the subject in a general manner. It would devolve upon the Government to consider whether they ought not to establish courts in all the great centres of population, and before the session closed it was hoped they would be able to propose a licensing bill.

The Sydney Municipal Council has taken initiatory steps for the construction of the great hall in connection with the Town Hall, having called for tenders for the completion of the foundation and basement. This hall, when completed in accordance with the design, will be an architectural embellishment to the city, and will afford that accommodation for large popular meetings and gatherings of other kinds, which at present is too much restricted for so large a city.

Bathurst has been the scene of a piece of military strategy; the Volunteer encampment of the Sydney Grammar School Cadets having been assaulted by the local corps, and captured by a coup de main. It was a real surprise in the night, and the enemy was in camp before his approach was known.

A railway enginedriver named William Chicken, being afflicted with disease of the heart, went while at Wagga to Dr. O'Connor's surgery for advice and professional help. He dropped dead in the doctor's presence. When one considers that the fatal moment might have come when the poor fellow was driving an engine, and that the iron horse thus left uncontrolled might have dragged hundreds of persons to death or lifelong mutilation, it becomes a forcible reason for strict medical examination as to the organic soundness of the physique of enginedrivers generally.

The suburban railway agitation is carried on with spirit. The Randwick residents held a large and influential meeting on Tuesday, and pledged itself to use every effort to support the Government in carrying out their policy with regard to the construction of suburban railways.

Cricket clubs in the city are now actively preparing for the coming campaign, which, as players are stimulated by the brilliant European tour just completed by their brethren, is likely to be exceptionally interesting. All who desire to see our colony maintaining the reputation it has earned in the noble game must be glad to see that the country is also bestirring itself to exertion. The established clubs are gathering their forces, and new clubs are being formed. It is to be hoped that in a short time the provinces will afford many recruiting stations for players required to keep up the prestige of New South Wales.

The council of the Agricultural Society on Wednesday held a meeting, at which it affirmed the previous orders preliminary to arrangements for holding the International Exhibition next year, and resolutions were passed in regard to the supply of funds. The International Exhibition Committee appointed a deputation to wait upon the Government with a view to obtaining a subsidy from the Treasury. At an interview with the Colonial Secretary, he promised to submit to Parliament a proposal to vote a sum equal to any that might be subscribed for purposes of the Exhibition.

A celebrated Canadian convert from the Church of Rome, the ex-priest Chiniquy, is now on a visit to Sydney, and is making a powerful demonstration against the Roman Catholic Church by his bold denunciation of her faults. On Wednesday he lectured to an immense audience at the Protestant Hall on the reasons why he and twenty-five thousand of his countrymen left that church, and on Thursday he delivered an address on the question, "Is the Church of Rome a branch of the Church of Christ, or is it old heathenism under a Christian name?"

The Royal Society held a meeting on Wednesday, and admitted a number of new members. Mr. W. A. Dixon read an interesting paper on the results of boring for water supply by means of artesian wells.

A meeting to promote the interests of the Maloga Aboriginal Mission, on the Murray River, was held in the Temperance Hall, on Wednesday, under the presidency of the Rev. R. Barnier, when Mr. Daniel Matthews, the inaugurator of the mission, delivered a lengthy address on its history, objects, and operations. A committee was formed to promote the objects of the mission.

Another wreck is reported on the coast. The schooner Agnes, from Sydney to Townsville, struck on a reef near the Queensland seaboard. The misadventure is supposed to have been caused by a current. The crew were saved, and a good deal of the cargo is likely to be recovered.

On Thursday the Colonial Secretary in the Legislative Assembly carried the second reading of the Sydney Corporation Bill, the chief feature of which is the provision for getting rid of the Corporation debt of £800,000 for water supply, and £200,000 for sewerage. It contains provisions with regard to the width of streets, the licensing of vehicles, and the extent to which rates may be levied is increased to 2s in the £. It also gives a yearly endowment of £25,000.

A large number of New England residents have petitioned Parliament to make some legislative provision to check the increase of marsupials. It is said the ravages of these animals are now so great as to become alarming.

In the Legislative Council Sir Alfred Stephen carried the second reading of the bill dealing with the adulteration of articles of food or drink. It takes up the three points of adulteration by means of ingredients injurious to health, adulteration in order to increase the bulk of a commodity, and the selling of articles not those asked for by the customer, and provides penalties for offences under each of these heads.

The Trades and Labour Council have taken into consideration the case of labouring men and skilled artizans who are victimized by defaulting sub-contractors on public works in the interior, either by the absconding of the employer or his failure in other ways to meet his engagements.

At a meeting of the New South Wales Political Union on Tuesday, the Government's draft Land Bill was a subject of discussion, and the meeting affirmed the desirability of the Electoral Law Amendment Bill taking precedence of that measure.

The New South Wales Cricket Association held its annual meeting on Thursday, Mr. J. J. Calvert in the chair. The report reviewed the season of 1877-78, and adverted in terms of gratulation to the recent victories of the Australian team in England. CURE OF RHEUMATIC GOUT.

July 12, 1876.

Mr. John Walton, of Dogdike, near Boston, writes: "I am 64 years of age, and have just been cured by Clarke's world-famed Blood Mixture of a dreadful attack of rheumatic gout, which had confined me to my bed for eighteen weeks."

CURE OF A BAD LEG.

"5, Chester Bridge, Crewe, June 12, 1876.

"Sir,—I have received the following from one of my numerous customers for your justly celebrated 'Blood Mixture.' You are at liberty to publish it.—Yours truly, "E. BOOTH, Chemist.

"To Mr. F. J. Clarke."

"3, Liverpool-terrace, Crewe, June 10, 1876.

"Mr. Booth,—Dear Sir,—I have for a long time suffered with a bad leg—the inflammation extending from the knee to the toes—which was rapidly breaking up my constitution. As a last resort I obtained from you a small bottle of 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and experienced so much relief from it that I persevered, and seven (7) small bottles cured me. I have recommended it to several of my friends, who are now improving rapidly under its use.—Yours truly, "HENRY DAVIES, Engine-fitter, Crewe Works."

CURE OF DROPSY.

"Gomersal, Leeds, September 4.

"Dear Sir.—This is to certify that two 11s bottles of 'Clarke's Blood Mixture cured my wife when three eminent doctors were powerless.

"Her complaint was dropsy, and she had been ill nearly ten years.—Yours truly, "JOHN COX."

WONDERFUL CURE OF ULCERATED SORE LEGS OF 18 YEARS' STANDING.

Messrs. C. Mumby and Company, Pharmaceutical Chemists, Gosport, write as follows:—

"Sir.—We have received the enclosed testimonial, and have much pleasure in forwarding it to you. As he obtained the medicine from us, we can vouch for the truth of his statement."

"27th February, 1875.

"I, Charles Luker, keeper of the Royal Engineers' Office, at Gosport, having had ulcerated sore legs for the last 18 years, which broke out while stationed at the Cape of Good Hope, since my return to England I have tried everything in the way of patent medicines I could hear of, and have had the best advice, both in Government and private hospitals, but obtained no permanent relief; on hearing three months ago of your medicines, I was induced to try them, and, wonderful to relate, after having taken one large bottle of Blood Mixture, and applied two 4s 6d pots of your Miraculous Salve, my legs are perfectly healed.

"CHAS. LUKER, late Sergeant R. Engineers.

"Witness—W. J. Sparrow.

"To Mr. F. J. Clarke, Lincoln."

SKIN DISEASES, eruptions, blotches, spots, pimples, pustules, boils, carbuncles, ringworms, scald heads, sore eyes, erysipelas, itch, scurfs, discolorations of the skin, humours and diseases of the skin of whatever name or nature, are literally carried out of the system in a short time by the use of this world-famed medicine.

IMPORTANT ADVICE TO ALL.—Cleanse the vitiated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is sold in bottles, 2s 6d each, and in cases containing six times the quantity, 11s each—sufficient to effect a permanent cure in the great majority of long-standing cases.

STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS for CHILDREN CUTTING TEETH. CAUTION TO PURCHASERS.

The value of this well-known Family Medicine has been largely tested in all parts of the world, and by all grades of society, for upwards of FIFTY YEARS. Its well-earned extensive sale has induced SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, some of which in OUTWARD APPEARANCE so closely resemble the original as to have deceived many purchasers. The proprietor, therefore, feels it due to the public to give a special caution against the use of such imitations.

Purchasers are therefore requested carefully to observe the four following distinctive characteristics, without which none are genuine:—

1. In every case the words JOHN STEEDMAN, Chemist, Walworth, Surrey, are engraved on the Government stamp affixed to EACH PACKET.
2. Each SINGLE POWDER has directions for the dose, and the words John Steedman, chemist, Walworth, Surrey, painted thereon.
3. The name Steedman is always spelt with two EE's.
4. The manufacture is carried on solely at Walworth, Surrey.

THE superabundance of articles of inferior quality to be met with in all classes of merchandise places the less initiated of a community to a great disadvantage in making selections of the genuine and superior articles themselves. Exhibition medals, prizes, testimonials, and so forth, are about worth three-hap'orth of salt, as a rule—but, to test and examine into the merits of anything and being satisfied, that, backed up with a guarantee from the vendor, is solid pounds, shillings, and pence worth. With the GENUINE HOME SHUTTLE SEWING-MACHINE you are offered every satisfaction. You may test it as you like, examine it as you will, and satisfy yourself that it is without an equal, as an excellent mechanical contrivance, and as a complete and satisfactory worker. Having done this, and agreed to purchase, the Agent (C. E. FULLER) will give you a written guarantee that it will prove to be as good, as durable, and as generally satisfactory as it is represented to be. You will be taught to work it thoroughly and efficiently, and no charge will be made.
The HOME Shuttle—stamped, and with latest improvements—is of the handsomest, the simplest, the strongest constructed, the most durable, the quietest, the easiest to learn, and the easiest running among all lock-stitch machines. May be purchased on TIME PAYMENTS of 10s deposit and 2s 6d weekly. Every man purchases on his own responsibility—no guarantee required—immediate possession given. Come and see the old Machine for yourself, and satisfy yourself that it is what it is said to be.
CYRUS E. FULLER, Sole Retail Agent, Stationers' Hall, 387, George-street, Sydney (nearly opposite Royal Hotel).

FOR PRIVATE SALE
FIRST-CLASS FREEHOLD PROPERTY,
EAST TALGAI,
DARLING DOWNS, QUEENSLAND.
GREGORY and SCHOLEFIELD have received instructions from Messrs. Clark and Co. to sell by private contract 20,000 (twenty thousand) acres of Freehold LAND, forming a part of the well-known East Talgai Estate, and consisting to a large extent of the richest agricultural soil and open well-grassed basaltic downs, the balance being forest land.
The whole splendidly watered by Dalrymple Creek, which flows through the centre of the property for more than seven miles, and substantially fenced and divided into convenient-sized paddocks.
The Toowoomba and Warwick Railway bounds it on one side for over three miles, giving a ready access to both of these rising and important towns.
The improvements consist of fencing, sheep yards, washpools, men's huts, &c., &c.
With the above the purchaser will have the option of taking, at a low valuation, unless previously sold, 18,000 (eighteen thousand) sheep, now pasturing on the property, which have all been bred on the estate by the Messrs. Clark, who are well known to be amongst the most successful sheep-breeders in the colony.
The whole property forms one of the most valuable estates in the district, being compact, surrounded by a ring fence, and all the land within such boundaries being secured by purchase from the Crown.
Arrangements can be made to suit any purchaser desiring a smaller property, as vendors are willing to reduce the acreage for sale to a minimum of 15,000 acres.
The improvements to be taken at a valuation.
Terms—Half cash; the balance can remain for a long period at a low rate of interest.

Since the establishment of the National Mutual Life Association it has met with marked success, the direct result of the public appreciation of the sound and equitable principles upon which it is established and conducted, and of the full and open statement of its affairs, periodically published in its reports.

During the first eight years of its business 3654 policies have been issued, assuring upwards of ONE MILLION STERLING, on which the premiums received exceed ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND POUNDS. TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND POUNDS have been returned to members in payment of claims, surrenders, and bonuses; and the ASSURANCE FUND at 30th September, 1877, amounted to £55,470 8s 10d.

Among the leading features adopted by the National Mutual, and introduced for the first time in these colonies, are the following:—

No member's Policy shall be allowed to lapse on account of the non-payment of any Premiums so long as it has a surrender value sufficient to pay the Premium overdue.

No member shall be compelled to pay a higher Premium on his Policy than that opposite his age in the table of rates.

The age of members shall be taken as at nearest birthday.

Surrender value allowed after a Policy has been two years in force.

SYDNEY WOOL SALES.
HARRISON, JONES, AND DEVLIN,
WOOL BROKERS,
STOCK AND STATION AGENTS.
WOOL WAREHOUSES, CIRCULAR QUAY.
OFFICES—BELL'S-CHAMBERS, PITT-STREET.

We beg to notify to the WOOLGROWERS and MERCHANTS of the Australian Colonies that our warehouses are ready for the reception of the 1878 clip of Wool, and that we are prepared to make LIBERAL CASH ADVANCES, if required, on Wool sent to us for SALE either in the colonies or in the London market.

Our business is that of SELLING BROKERS ONLY, so that our friends may depend upon our best exertions to obtain for them the fullest market value. Valuations are carefully made before the sale of each lot, and the smallest lot is not sold unless a fair market value can be obtained.

The charge for offering Wool at our own warehouses is only nominal when not sold. All Wool while in our stores is covered by insurance at full value at a very trifling cost. Our arrangements for shipping are not to be surpassed, as, from the extensive nature of our business, we can command the most favourable freights.

Our charges for selling, receiving, and delivering are about one-half of those charged by Victorian brokers.

We hold PUBLIC SALES BY AUCTION of WOOL and SHEEPSKINS once a week, and ACCOUNT SALES are rendered and PROCEEDS PAID within SEVEN DAYS OF SALE.

AUCTION SALES of TALLOW, HIDES, LEATHER, and other produce are also held weekly.

Way-bills will be forwarded on application, and any further information that may be desired.

SYDNEY WOOL SALES.
JOHN BRIDGE,
WOOL BROKER, STOCK and STATION AGENT.
Wool Warehouses, Circular Quay, Sydney.
Sale Yards for Stock, Homebush and Sydney.

In tendering my sincerest thanks to my numerous friends all over the Australian colonies for their support and confidence so liberally extended to me during the last ten years, I hope, now that another season is commencing, and that I am better than ever prepared to do the fullest justice to any interests entrusted to me, that I shall still receive as full a share of support as SCRUPULOUS HONESTY, LOWEST CHARGES, and UNTIRING ATTENTION can deserve. THE EXTENT OF MY BUSINESS WILL NOW COMPARE CREDITABLY with that of ANY HOUSE IN NEW SOUTH WALES; and I have NOT had to RESORT TO, nor RELY UPON, MISREPRESENTATIONS OF ANY SORT.

I act as SELLING AGENT ONLY; am prepared to make immediate advances against wool or other produce for sale or shipment, and against the coming clip, on EASIER TERMS THAN ANY OTHER AGENT. Fullest information furnished by letter or telegram if desired.

In justice to this market, I beg to protest against the impression that wools realise more in Melbourne than in Sydney. A lie is said to be as good as the truth if it gets twenty-four hours' start; and the Melbourne Agents have made the most of a BAD and NOW FAILING CAUSE. Very little reflection will show that on EVERY BALE of wool sent hence to Melbourne the COSTS ARE £1 MORE than if it were sold here; that all buyers are equally represented at both places; that buyers know better than pay 2d. to 4d. (or even ½d.) per lb. more in Melbourne than in Sydney, qualities being equal, and that if any such difference existed our Sydney buyers would soon turn it to good account by shipping to Melbourne. At request of many friends I have sold wool in MELBOURNE, but NEVER YET at a HIGHER price THAN WAS FIRST OFFERED IN SYDNEY.

SALES of wool held every WEDNESDAY, and oftener if desirable.

SALES of tallow, hides, sheepskins, leather, tin ore, maize, &c., &c., held weekly, and of live stock twice a week.

JOHN BRIDGE.

WOOL SEASON, 1878.

We have much pleasure in notifying to the WOOL GROWERS of NEW SOUTH WALES and QUEENSLAND that we are prepared to receive at our WOOL WAREHOUSES, CIRCULAR QUAY, consignments of the present Season's Clip FOR SALE IN THE SYDNEY MARKET, and, from our long experience in the business, we can confidently promise to our constituents the most careful attention in the disposal of their wool, combined with the utmost promptitude in paying over all proceeds and rendering account sales.

WHERE OWNERS' RESERVE cannot be obtained, we will, should they desire to try the VICTORIAN Market, forward their wools to our friends in MELBOURNE, MESSRS. R. GOLDSBROUGH and CO., the cost of so doing in such cases being only the transit charges advertised by that firm.

Should, however, owners prefer the English Market, we will receive and ship the wool to our London Agents, making, at the same time, LIBERAL CASH ADVANCES, as nearly as possible up to the value of the wool in the Sydney Market.

In every case where wool is consigned to us for sale the greatest care is exercised in valuing prior to offering it at auction, and not even the smallest parcel is disposed of unless we are quite certain that we are obtaining for it the fullest market value.

In SHIPPING to London we are particular to secure first-class vessels, at the lowest rates of freight, for, as we ship largely, we are always able to make good terms; and our friends may rest assured that the strictest attention will be given to their interests in carrying out whatever business may be entrusted to our care.

J. T. FALLON'S ALBURY WINES.
J. T. Fallon announces that, having recently discovered the very extensive substitution of inferior Wines for those of his Vineyard, and the Forgery of his Labels by numerous Vendors of "Albury Wines," he has been compelled to take decisive steps to stop such imposition and wrong, and to get placed before the public in unmistakeable form the well-matured Wines of his Vineyard.
J. T. Fallon is submitting to the public no wine under seven years of age, and all are warranted to maintain the high character they have attained wherever exhibited.
The public should not fail to observe that J. T. Fallon can only guarantee the genuineness of such wines as are obtained direct from himself, or from his recognised Agents, a list of which will be found below.

To Art Connoisseurs, Picture Dealers, Trustees of Public Institutions, and especially Roman Catholic Churches.

GEMMELL, TUCKETT, and CO. have received instructions, to sell by auction, at their Rooms, 49, Collins-street West, on WEDNESDAY, October 16, at 2 o'clock,
For UNRESERVED SALE,
The well-known, valuable, and well-selected collection of PAINTINGS, the property of the late James Purves, Esq., consisting of a choice assortment of original pictures, and copies of chef-d'oeuvres of the old masters.

Gemmell, Tuckett, and Co., in calling attention to this sale, certainly the most important one of its class that has ever taken place in the Australian colonies, would desire to draw the attention of all buyers of pictures to the following facts:—The originals of the copies (of which the collection mainly consists), comprise the principal pictures in the galleries of the following towns: Antwerp, Genoa, Florence, Venice, and Rome. Except in a very few instances, they were not painted to order, but were selected from amongst numerous finished pictures on account of their merit. Some of them bore a well-deserved local reputation for their excellence, and several were the "show pictures" of the artists who made use of them for the purpose of securing orders. They would particularly instance "The Descent from the Cross," by Phillips; "The Showing of the Hands," and the "Madonna of the Lamb," three copies of Ruben's Antwerp pictures. They unhesitatingly assert that three better copies than these are not procurable, and that they faithfully render the large treatment of composition and colouring for which the Painter Prince of Antwerp is famous. The same remarks apply to several of the Italian copies. Many of the pictures were copied whilst the originals were down, and being cleaned, and when the artists, therefore, had peculiar opportunities of giving a faithful rendering. These will be indicated in the catalogue.
The copy of "Peter Martyr" has a peculiar value. The church of San Zanipolo at Venice was some eight years ago burnt to the ground, and Titian's masterpiece perished in the flames. A guarantee will be given, if required, that this magnificent copy was made from the original.
The Roman and Florentine pictures were painted for the most part by Jacques Beltrami and Tito Berti, whose reputations are long since made, both as copyists and as original painters.
The frames of the Italian pictures are made of carved wood. The gilding is "Sequin gold." Several are copies of the frames of the original pictures, notably that of the "Madonna della Seggiola."
They would remind their Roman Catholic fellow-colonists that an opportunity like the present seldom occurs. The size and subjects of the works make them eminently suitable for church decoration, altar-pieces, &c.
A guarantee will, if required, be given that every copy was absolutely painted from the original.
The original pictures comprise examples of Glover (three superb landscapes in oil), Carlo Zatti, Burnet, &c., of which full particulars will be given in a future advertisement.
A small but choice collection of statuary will also be sold at the same time.

Catalogues are in preparation. When ready notice will be given, and they may be had on application, or by letter, at the Rooms of the Auctioneers, 49, Collins-street West, Melbourne.

GOONIAN STATION, together with 4500 HEAD MIXED CATTLE, more or less.

HARRISON, JONES, and DEVLIN have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, on WEDNESDAY, October 23, at 12 o'clock,
GOONIAN STATION, together with 4500 HEAD MIXED CATTLE, more or less.

The STATION is situated on the DUMARESQ RIVER, to which it has a frontage of 12 miles on both sides, and is further watered by lagoons, large creeks, good springs in the ridges, and a dam six miles back, thus securing abundant water in all seasons.

The COUNTRY, which is equally adapted for sheep, consists of well-grassed apple-tree flats, open box and ironbark ridges, backed up by a light scrub of brigalow, yarran, and pine, with some sand ridges.

The IMPROVEMENTS are comfortable 12-roomed house, hall, and verandahs, with every convenience; servant's quarters, 5 rooms; store, men's huts, coachhouse, stables, horse-boxes, cart-shed, &c., &c.; garden with fruit trees, vines, and vegetables; stockyard, divided into 9 yards; cultivation paddock and two horse paddocks, of 150 acres each; and a large paddock, 600 acres, all securely enclosed by a 2-rail fence.
There are 2560 acres PURCHASED LAND on the Queensland side of the river, and 160 acres on the N. S. Wales side have been applied for.

The STOCK has always been very carefully bred, the CATTLE being of the HEREFORD and DEVON breeds, from bulls bred by Reynolds, Loder, and Wyndham. The HORSES, about 100 head, by Comet, Priam, and others.

Full particulars may be obtained upon application to HARRISON, JONES, and DEVLIN, Sydney.

LIVERPOOL PLAINS DISTRICT.

KEEPIT STATION, together with 13,800 MIXED SHEEP 500 HEAD CATTLE. Estimated capability 30,000 SHEEP.

HARRISON, JONES, and DEVLIN have been instructed by R. Blaxland, Esq., to sell by public auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, on WEDNESDAY, 6th November, 1878, at 12 o'clock,
KEEPIT STATION, situated on the NAMOI RIVER, just above its junction with the PEEL RIVER.
The general character of the COUNTRY is black soil flats and open box forest
It is AMPLY WATERED by the NAMOI RIVER, which passes through the CENTRE OF THE RUN, and Wongo, Hallinger, and Rushes Creeks, and numerous SPRINGS and DAMS
There are about 4560 acres of freehold land, and 9645 conditionally purchased
The STOCK consists of
500 head mixed CATTLE
13,850 ditto ditto SHEEP, viz:
EWES—11,000, now lambing
2,000, maiden
200 rams
850 ration sheep
all more or less.
About 5000 of the above ewes have lambed and show an increase of cent. per cent.

The IMPROVEMENTS consist of residence, wool shed, drafting yards, cattle yards, horse paddock, and several sheep-proof paddocks, and nearly the whole of the boundaries are fenced; the estimated area of the run is about 100,000 acres.
The above run forms one of the best breeding stations in the district, being good sound country and singularly adapted to sheep-breeding, as is shown by the extraordinary number of twins and thribs in the present lambing, and if worked with Rickards as at present, would yield an immense revenue.
It is only through the death of one of the partners that this valuable property is offered for sale, the surviving partner intending to relinquish squatting after winding up the partnership.

Full particulars may be obtained on application to HARRISON, JONES, and DEVLIN, Sydney.

By order of the Executors in the Estate of the late Mrs. MARY GIRARD, Richmond River.

DUNGARUBBA and TUCKI TUCKI STATIONS. Together with 5000 HEAD mixed CATTLE, more or less.

HARRISON, JONES, and DEVLIN have been instructed by the executors in the estate of the late Mrs. Mary Girard to sell by public auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, on WEDNESDAY, 30th October, 1878, at 12 o'clock,
DUNGARUBBA and TUCKI TUCKI STATIONS, situated on the north side of the RICHMOND RIVER, embracing an area of about 45,000 acres, being all the available country on that side of the river, to which it has a frontage of about 36 miles. It is ABUNDANTLY WATERED by the DUNGARUBBA and TUCKI TUCKI CREEKS and the BROADWATER, the reliable nature of the supply having been amply proved during the late long-continued drought.
From this station all the vessels trading to the Richmond are supplied with BEEF, which is alone a very large source of profit, and FAT CATTLE are readily saleable on the run, at (say) £4 for bullocks and £3 for cows.
There are 230 acres of purchased land on the runs, which will have to be taken at £1 per acre.
The IMPROVEMENTS consist of superintendent's residence of 4 rooms, kitchen, servant's room, three-stall stable, milking yard, shed, overseer's cottage, slaughterhouse, stock-yard, capable of working 3000 head, with lane, and paddock of about 700 acres of rich land, which can be purchased in virtue of improvements.
With the runs will be sold
5000 HEAD MIXED CATTLE
30 HORSES.
All more or less.

The CATTLE are an exceedingly well-bred herd, great care having been taken for many years in the selection of the bulls, and as only one draft of store bullocks has been taken out for the last 4 years, there is a large number of MARKETABLE CATTLE now available.
The purchaser of these runs will have the option of taking at a nominal price per acre the LISMORE ESTATE, comprising 737 acres of FREEHOLD LAND, adjoining the town boundary of LISMORE, together with 25 acres 3 roods 23 perches of town land, upon which is a LAGOON with a never-failing supply of water. The land adjoining this property was sold at £30 per acre, and 187 acres also near the town.
On this ESTATE are the following IMPROVEMENTS:—Dwelling-house of 8 rooms, kitchen, store, scullery, bathroom, servants' rooms, general station store, saddle and harness room, stable, hay shed, bull-shed, corn loft, milking yard, slaughter-house, stockyard, overseer's house, garden and orchard of about 5 acres, stocked with choicest fruit trees, plants and flowers, two cultivation and two horse paddocks—the whole of the land being fenced in.
This valuable property is situated at the head of navigation, and the steamers Agnes Irving, Platypus, and Ballina ply to and fro regularly.

The character of the CLARENCE and RICHMOND CATTLE is too well-known to need special comment here, and the extraordinary advantages of these stations are of such a nature as to render them the most lucrative, easily managed, and safest investment that can be found, and are almost entirely free from the disastrous effects of drought, while the condition of the herd would afford an immediate and very large return.
Full particulars may be obtained on application to HARRISON, JONES, and DEVLIN, Sydney.

WOODSTOCK SECOND ANNUAL SALE.

PURE-BRED DEVON, HEREFORD, SHORTHORN, and other CATTLE, also WELL-BRED MARES.

HARRISON, JONES, and DEVLIN have received instructions from WALTER LAMB, Esq., to sell by public auction, at WOODSTOCK, ROOTY HILL, on WEDNESDAY, 6th November, at 11 o'clock,
20 PURE DEVON COWS, with calves at foot, or in calf to EARL OF DEVON and CORRECTOR
10 PURE DEVON HEIFERS, 18 months to 2 years old
15 PURE DEVON HEIFERS, about 12 months
20 PURE DEVON BULLS, by CORRECTOR and EARL OF DEVON
10 HALF-BRED DEVON COWS and HEIFERS
10 PURE-BRED DEVON STEERS, adapted for working.
Also.
The prize Hereford bulls DUKE OF BRONTE by PRINCE OF WALES, dam DUCHESS OF BRONTE (both imported)
4 YOUNG HEREFORD BULLS, by DUKE OF BRONTE
15 PURE HEREFORD COWS and HEIFERS, forward with calves at foot by the DUKE OF BRONTE
THE SHORTHORN BULL, IMPERIAL PURPLE 40th
SEVERAL PURE-BRED SHORTHORN COWS and HEIFERS
A few WELL-BRED MARES, with foals at foot by SAN JOSE PATCHEN, imported American trotter
And some ponies, by the imported Shetland, COMMODORE NUTT.

After several years' experience Mr. Lamb has proved beyond doubt that no cattle thrive in the County of Cumberland like the DEVON; and as young well-bred stock are the only description now purchased for fattening purposes, the attention of farmers is particularly called to the fact.

LIVERPOOL PLAINS DISTRICT.

KICKERBILL STATION.

UNSTOCKED.

Estimated Capability, 20,000 Sheep.

HARRISON, JONES, and DEVLIN have received instructions from R. Blaxland, Esq., to sell by public auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, on WEDNESDAY, 6th November, 1878, at 12 o'clock,
KICKERBILL STATION, situated on the MOOKI RIVER, and surrounded by the A. A. Company's celebrated Warrah station, Selville, Mooki Springs, Forresters, Yarraman, Walhollow, and Clift Breeza Stations.
The COUNTRY consists of exceedingly rich black soil plains, and box ridges, and is admitted to be the grandest fattening run on the plains.
The WATER is abundant and well defused over the run, which in addition to extensive frontage to the Mooki River, has about 30 wells, the principal of which are in working order, and fitted with water lifts, whims, &c.
Its carrying capacity is fully up to 20,000 sheep, and would fatten off 15,000 sheep per annum.

There are about 3037 acres purchased land, and 3680 acres conditionally purchased.
The improvements include superior eight-roomed cottage and garden, kitchen, laundry, store, and all necessary outbuildings; Stock and sheep drafting yards, &c., all in good order.
The whole run is securely fenced, and subdivided into paddocks of about 6000 acres, in addition to homestead, horse, and cultivation paddocks.
In placing this property before the public, the auctioneers would point out that it only reaches the market in consequence of the death of one of the partners, the surviving partner intending to wind up the affairs of the partnership, and relinquish squatting pursuits.
This run is undoubtedly one of the best and the most fattening run in this favourite district, and is certainly not surpassed in its fattening properties by any run in the colony.

Full particulars may be obtained on application to HARRISON, JONES, and DEVLIN, Sydney.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on THURSDAY, the 31st October, at 11 o'clock,
The above VALUABLE and HIGHLY-IMPROVED station property.

The BURRANDOWAN RUN comprises ELEVEN BLOCKS of COUNTRY, known as BURRANDOWAN, PEEROONE, CUSHNIE, BALLOGIE, KINGSLAND, CHAPPINGAH, LETTERFOURIE, GORDONSTONE, DUNROBIN, DANGORE, and MANNUEM, adjoining each other, and embracing together a large tract of sound well grassed pasturage, estimated to contain 655 SQUARE MILES, principally lightly timbered country, of silver-leafed ironbark ridges, and box and apple tree flats. The run is well watered by the RIVERS BOYNE and STUART, having frontages on both sides of about 30 miles to the former, and 14 miles to the latter, as well as by numerous CREEKS, tributary to both the main streams. This country has stood the late drought without losses of importance, but in ordinary seasons, with its present limited herd, it is considered by practical graziers to be BARELY HALF STOCKED.
THE IMPROVEMENTS are of the most extensive character, and comprise every requisite for working the property, either for cattle or sheep, or both, with comfort and economy.
At the Head Station there are:—a CAPITAL RESIDENCE of 12 rooms, with front and back verandahs 12 feet wide, detached kitchen, bachelor's quarters, stores, workshops, tables, and men's hut. Adjoining the house is a LARGE GARDEN, well-stocked with VINES and FRUIT TREES. A short distance from the homestead is a large SHINGLED WOOL SHED, capable of accommodating 25 shearers, also extensive wool-bins, rack and pinion press, and storage room for 200 bales of wool.
The PADDOCK accommodation encloses about 3000 acres.
At the following OUT-STATIONS there are also important improvements, viz.:—
At JUMMA (18 miles from head station) there are:—Overseer's Cottage, Men's Huts, Drafting Yards (sheep), and 2 Horse-paddocks.
At COBBITY (14 miles from Head Station) there are newly erected stockman's cottage, branding yards, and horse paddock.
At HOLLAND'S CREEK (4 miles from Cobbity) there is a good stockyard, and there are also four herding yards on different parts of the run.
Near the Head Station there is a large stockyard, and a recently erected paddock enclosed by about 12 miles of wire and chock and log fencing, now used for heifers.
The herd to be sold with this property numbers 6000 head, more or less, of QUIET WELL-BRED CATTLE, nearly all bred on the run, and including amongst them a large proportion of grown bullocks.
The BULLS, for which no expense has been spared, have amongst them a large number of choice animals, selected with good judgment, from the following stations, noted for the high character of their Stock, viz.:—
Australian Agricultural Company, Liverpool Plains, N.S.W.
Andrew Loder, Liverpool Plains, N.S.W.
The Celebrated CXS brand, Richmond River, N.S.W.
North British Australian Company, St. Ruths, Darling Downs, and a few from Baramba, Burnett District, and Calliungal, on the Fitzroy.
The HORSE STOCK is also of very high class, and includes about 120, more or less, broken to saddle and draught
100, more or less of brood mares and young stock.
There are also two THOROUGHBRED STALLIONS—one of the coaching stamp, and one purchased at the Sydney Exhibition of 1876, at a cost of £150.
BURRANDOWAN RUN, which is about sixty miles from the RAILWAY STATION, at DALBY, is rented at £490 per annum.
The above valuable pastoral property is now brought forward for bona fide sale to the highest bidder, to determine the present partnership, and capitalists are reminded of the opportunity which this sale offers for acquiring a really valuable and healthy run, unencumbered with purchased land, and scarcely likely to be interfered with by alienations for many years to come.

These stations comprise splendid country, the freehold and Crown lands are highly improved, and the sheep are second to none in Australia. Owing to the death of Mr. George Peppin, the properties are for positive sale.
An extra stud flock which was formed many years ago, consisting of about 800 ewes and lambs with sufficient rams for them, will be sold separately from either of the properties, and can be seen on Wanganella in the wool until the 14th instant.
It having been rumoured that the surviving partner intends purchasing some of these properties, we beg to distinctly state that he has not the slightest intention of doing so.
Plans of the runs can be seen and full particulars obtained at the agents' offices, 68, Queen-street.
